A Ford roadster was being driven at a terrific speed down the McCrumb hill east of Novi, when toward the bottom of the hill it evidently became unmanageable, and in less time than it takes to record it, left the road, jumped the high fence on the north side of the road and landed in the field upside down, the driver being pinned underneath, having made a leap of about 15 feet. The driver was quite badly bruised and scratched up, but not seriously hurt.
