The '81 Cougar

A wide selection of power trains highlights the 1981 Cougar. The best fuel economy comes with a 2.3-liter engine and four-speed manual transmission. Both the 3.3-liter six-cylinder and 4.2-liter V-8 engines are optional on all models. The all-new Cougar is available in two- and four-door sedans.

Don't let Indian summer delay car winterizing

While our Indian summer's high temperatures may not make you think of "winterizing" your car, it's not too early to begin, says the Automotive Information Council (AIC).

Avoiding cold-weather no-starts is reason enough to check over your car for items that need repair or maintenance.

The following checklist should aid you in preparing your car for winter:

• Check the condition of the cooling system and flush and refill the radiator with anti-freeze if necessary. Replace hoses that are cracked or spongy.

• Make sure the battery is fully charged. In zero-degree weather or below, a battery provides only half of its summer cranking speed. Check the condition of the cables and connections and look for corrosion.

• If engine performance has been dropping, it may be time for a tune-up. And a tune-up should help gasoline mileage. Consult your owner's manual for the proper service interval. If you car takes a bit of coaxing to start now, you may have real headaches once the weather becomes colder.

• Look at the exhaust system for extra rust and pinholes. Exhaust fumes escaping into a car with the windows rolled up and the vents closed can be very dangerous and even lethal.

• Check the tires for tread depth and uneven wear patterns. If you plan on changing to snow tires, get them out and check them over for wear. Check your steering and brakes, too. You'll need tires, brakes and a steering system in good condition to stop without skidding on slick surfaces.

• Make sure the lights, winshield wipers and windshield washer system all work. You may not think about them until you need them, and they can't do any good if they don't work.

• Then give the car a good waxing to protect the finish until spring. Between the summer sun your car's finish just survived, the bad winter weather to come and the inevitable road salt, the finish needs all the help you can give it. Once the roads are salted, regular washing will help the finish, too.
