FARMINGTON CITY AND TOWNSHIP HISTORY

Farmington, located in one of the south tiers of Townships in Oakland County, is joined on its north, west and east sides by West Bloomfield, Novi and Southfield respectively, has a fine rolling surface and a most productive soil, giving Farmington a high rank amongst the best of the other County Townships.

It was first settled in 1824 by Arthur Power, his sons Jared and John, with David Smith and Daniel Rush, men in Mr. Powers' employ; other immigrants arrived shortly afterwards amongst whom were Geo. W. Collins, Solomon Walker, Geo. Tibbits, Sanford M. Utley, Robert Wixom. In 1825 other settlers came and considering those early days, a fair sized colony was soon formed.

The first postal facilities were obtained in 1825 and the first Post Master was Dr. Webb who operated in his own log house; two shillings was the price paid for each letter mailed at that time. The first school came into existence in 1826 and the first class was taught by Nathan Power: the first saw mill was built by Arthur Power and the first grist mill was built and operated by Edward and Harman Steel; the first framed dwelling was constructed by Timothy Tolman and the first in merchandising was begun by Lyman Boughton about 1830.

The Township Government was formed in 1827, Amos Mead being chosen as Supervisor, Robert Wixom, clerk, and the Justice of Peace office was filled by Wm. Yerkes, Seth A. L. Warner, and Amos Mead.

The next subject on hand for the officials, was a name for the community; they decided on "Quakertown" but this name was not favored enthusiastically and the name of "Farmington" was given instead and was incorporated in the winter of 1866-67.

Churches and schools were soon erected, stores and dwellings were built and Farmington soon became a thriving farming section.

Many changes have occurred since 1867 although the village remained under township government until 1926, nearly sixty years afterwards when the people voted it to become a city.

The present city limits are from 9 to 10 Mile Roads from south to north, and Orchard Lake Road to Gill Road, from east to west; at this writing the population is over 1500 and at the rate new homes are appearing, it should increase rapidly.

Mention should also be made of the good water system, of the competent Fire Department, the many churches and the High and Grade School, a large addition to which was recently completed.

The weekly newspaper, The Farmington Enterprise, has been published many years, now under the able management of Mr. Hyman Levinson, keeps us in touch with local happenings and the news of the day.

Farmington has many beautifully shaded streets, many beautiful homes, is a desirable city to live in and should have a wonderful future. Let us hope so.

We are indebted to Mr. Wm. Irish of Grand River Ave. for data in this article.

WINES AND CHAMPAGNE INC.

FARMINGTON,
MICHIGAN

THE LaSALLE plant in Farmington is a credit to Michigan. Its million-gallon capacity makes it not only the largest winery in the state but places it up among the 10 leading wineries in the nation. In point of bottled wine, LaSalle is one of the three largest on the continent. Visitors are welcome to see wine in the making, to inspect its hospital-clean fermenting and bottling rooms, its remarkable automatic bottling plant.
