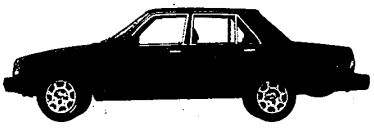
This is how much car you should expect for $20,000 today.



From the second-largest carmaker in Europe comes the Peugeot 604 Turbodiesel. A car of discreet opulence—imported for those who can afford the price but don't wish to flaunt the fact.

The $19,595* price of the Peugeot 604 includes factory-installed air conditioning, electric windows, electric sunroof, cruise control, 40-watt digital AM/FM stereo radio and cassette deck with Seek/Scan tuning and four speakers, central door locking system, alloy wheels, and Michelin TRX tires.

The only extra-cost options are a 3-speed automatic transmission ($400), leather upholstery ($690), and metallic paint ($375).

Also available: the Peugeot 505 in diesel, turbodiesel, and fuel-injected gasoline models priced from $15,510 to $10,990.* The Peugeot diesel wagon is priced at $11,660.*

See your dealer for details of Peugeot's limited warranties.

*Manufacturer's P.O.E. suggested retail prices. Actual prices may vary according to dealer. Optional equipment, destination charges, state and local taxes, dealer preparation, if any, and license fees are extra.

TWO PLACES WHERE THE SAAB PERFORMS WELL.

When you drive to the supermarket in a Saab, the last thing you have to worry about is where to pack the groceries. The 3-door model has 14.9 cubic feet of trunk space. That gives you as much room as the biggest-selling luxury sedans in America.

If your needs demand even more space, just fold down the backseat and it turns into a roomy station wagon with a full 56.5 cubic feet of cargo space.

On the track, the Saab really performs. So well, in fact, that it's the car to beat in the Sports Car Club of America's Show Room Stock category.

So come test drive a Saab. Whether you want a car for picking up groceries or picking up speed.
