THE MOST UNUSUAL FEATURE ABOUT THE 1982 SAAB MAY BE ITS 1981 PRICE.

In a year when most car prices are being raised from Detroit to Tokyo, Saab is keeping its prices exactly the same.

Saab has always done things a little differently.

From the very first one that rolled off the assembly line over thirty years ago, with front-wheel drive.

To our 1982 line, with four-wheel disc brakes, energy-absorbing bumpers and roof and mechanically controlled fuel injection. As well as one of the first turbocharged engines to leave the track.

But the biggest difference has always been the way a Saab drives. This year, in fact, the editors of Road & Track magazine thought enough of that difference to unanimously select Saab the sports sedan for the eighties.

Saab was always an unusual car. Now it just has an unusual price.

SAAB
The most intelligent car ever built.
