SNEEZER IS BARRED OUT

No Place for Him in Good Orchestra, No Matter How Good Performer He Is.

Even high-class musicians are not above indulgence in practical jokes, according to a story told in Live Topics About Town of the New York Sun. But played too oft they may become a matter of serious import to the player, using the term in its broadest meaning. Nobody can dispute the sincerity of the players in a big orchestra like the Philharmonic or the New York Symphony. Most of the time they take their work seriously, but sometimes the men break loose and play tricks on one another, as though they were youngsters in school. Of course the audience knows nothing of these things; they are usually perpetrated in rehearsals. The red-pepper trick is the commonest. The joker scatters it where the bassoon and trombone players are likely to suck it up. The result is chokes and sneezes. Sometimes the epidemic reaches even into the strings, but of course the players on the wind instruments get it worst. As a matter of fact, the jokers are playing with fire.

A confirmed sneezer can't get a job in a good orchestra, no matter how good a performer he may be," said a constant concert goer. "Think of the effect of a rousing sneeze on a diminuendo! Why, it would spoil a whole concert, one sneeze would. A conductor has to guard against a sneeze as he does against inebriety."

MAKE FAST TIME ON SKATES

French Engineer's Invention Permits of Speed of Over Thirty Miles an Hour.

A new form of roller skate, the invention of M. Louis Marchand, a young French engineer, will shortly be seen on this side, a large quantity of them having been imported for the present season.

These skates, which resemble nothing more than miniature bicycles, weigh 25 pounds each, and work automatically. They have thick pneumatic tires and the wheels, of which there are two on each skate, are 12 inches in diameter.

Thirty miles an hour can easily be made by an unexperienced skater with these skates. The skate is clamped to the shoe; and when the foot is raised a spring is automatically wound up around a specially constructed gear attached to the rear wheel. When the foot is put to the ground the pressure releases the spring, unwinds the gear, and revolves the rear wheel at a great rate. Nearly 900 revolutions a minute are thus produced.

What He Had to Say.

Every once in a while a new campaign story yet hobs up in Washington. This one is on Ralph Cole, Ohio member of congress, who did his best to make his district go Republican, but who cannot point to any particular howling success in that regard. At one town in his district he was to divide his time with a local spellbinder. The local man spoke first, and was so much kept going for half an hour, but he made it an hour and a half. When he got through he made an apology for encroaching on Cole's time.

"It reminds me," Cole said, as he faced his audience, "of what I once heard in a courtroom. The defendant had been found guilty of a criminal charge. The judge sentenced him to 15 years. 'Have you anything to say?' demanded the court of the prisoner. 'Nothing but this,' was the reply. 'I think you're mighty damned liberal with another man's time.'"

Then Cole turned loose and coaxed back the departing audience by the flow of his wonderful oratory.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

"Snapping" the Caribou.

In this country when you see a tree, you know perfectly well it isn't a tree; it's the horns of a caribou lying down. An unusually large affair of branches appeared on an island in the channel to Aylmer. I landed, camera in hand; there was a tuft of herbage 20 yards from him; another 20 yards. I crawled to the first and made a snapshot; then, flat as a rug, sneaked my way to the one I estimated at 20 yards. The click of the camera alarmed the buck; he rose, tried the wind, then lay down again, giving me another glance. Having used all the films, I now stood up. The caribou dashed away, and by a slight limp showed that he was in sanctuary. The 20-yard estimate proved too long; it was only 15 yards, which put my picture a little out of focus.—Ernest Thompson Seton in Scribner's.

New Style in Names.

Rev. Dr. Henry van Dyke urges patriotic Americans to name their children after the states and the nation. He commends, in this respect, the South Americans, who use Columbia, America and many attractive Latin derivatives of famous names connected with the history of the western world. The president of Ecuador has three daughters, and they are called America, Quita, the feminine of the capital city of Ecuador, and Castilla, after the ancient race from which the Latins are proud to derive their origin. Years ago Alabama, Mississippi, Missouri, Indiana and other euphonious names were popular for girls. Now such a name seldom is heard. A decline of patriotism and state pride, thinks Doctor van Dyke.

HUNT BUFFALO IN AUTOS

Enraged Bison Escaping From James J. Hill's Farm is Run Down.

The screams of school children barricaded in a district school seven miles from Anoka prevented a charge through a window of the building by the enraged buffalo that escaped from James J. Hill's farm 20 miles away, and gave the clue to the whereabouts of the beast that led to its death, says a Minneapolis dispatch to the New York World.

Reporters ascertained in their chase of the animal that it really was a full-grown American bison. In an automobile the reporters began the hunt for an animal now almost extinct.

Even the skeptical people of the country, who scouted the first reports of farmers, who were terrorized by sight of the beast, are convinced that it really was a buffalo.

Early the countryside was roused and the chase renewed. After an exciting hunt the animal was located in the heavy timber a quarter of a mile from Barney Morlon's place, on the State road. County Attorney H. Pratt and Joe Giddings left the automobile, in which they had been pursuing the beast, and hastily entered the timber tract. On the other side of the wood Pratt made out the creature dashing through a field of stubble. Though it was a long shot, Pratt fired. This was followed by a volley from Giddings, and together the men hastened in the direction of the clearing. A trail of blood was found, and another glimpse through the farther thickets showed that the animal was hampered in its rapid flight by a slight limp. Later in the day the buffalo was shot and killed by a posse.

DRAMA, DUKES AND DUCATS

Some American Actresses Who Have Made Brilliant Matrimonial Alliances.

In a list of American actresses and chorus girls who have married men of wealth or members of the aristocracy the New Idea Woman's Magazine puts Edith Kingdon, now Mrs. George Gould, first.

Then comes the marriage of Oscar Lewisohn to Edna May, and of his younger brother Jesse, to Edna McCauley. August Belmont and Eleanor Robson are now a happy married couple, and Ethel Barrymore, the most engaged on the stage, became the bride of Russell Griswold Colt.

Two more actresses who married rich men are Millicent Willson, the wife of William Randolph Hearst, and Minnie Ashley, who married William Astor Chanler. Amy Busby married Eugene Leslie, a New York lawyer, and Gladys Wills married Samuel Insull, who is at the head of Edison's electrical enterprises in the west, and is a very rich man.

In the matter of titles the American actress has proved equally irresistible. Camille Clifford is now the Hon. Mrs. Henry Lyndhurst Bruce and some day she will be Lady Aberdare. Connie Gilchrist, Sylvia Storey and Rosie Boote are now addressed as the Countess Poulette, the Countess of Orkney and the Marchioness of Headfort. Anna Robinson became the Countess of Rosslyn a few years ago, and Eva Carrington wedded Lord de Clifford. Frances Belmont, one of the famous "Floradora Sextette," is now Lady Ashburton.

Six Quills to a Novel.

The use of quill pens is by no means confined to government offices and the gentlemen who point with them at unhappy witnesses. A habitual writer, for instance, confesses that he never willingly used a steel pen since he was out of the control of schoolmasters. He always used quills until the triumphant fountain pen provided him with a reasonable substitute, and that more because of its convenience than its efficiency. Several well-known novelists still stick to the quill; it is, indeed the only writing implement with any personality. If it is refractory you can coax it. The mending of a quill does not require much practice and you can buy, for a small sum, a little machine that does it for you beautifully. You may easily write 15,000 words with one quill, mending it four times, which gives six quills to the novel. So the cost of novel writing is small—stated in terms of quills.

A Half-Cent Coin.

The lack of the half cent in our money undoubtedly costs the consumers of the United States millions of dollars every year. Competition has become so keen in business that producers and middlemen figure their prices down to the finest point. The difference of a half or even a quarter of a cent in the cost of such things as flour, sugar and soap means in the aggregate thousands of dollars to them. And that fraction of a cent is as valuable to the buyers as to the sellers. Yet when a certain cloth is advertised for sale at 37½ cents a yard and a woman buys three yards of it she pays $1.13, because she cannot hand over $1.12½. With eggs at 45 cents a dozen, she pays 23 cents for half a dozen. The odd half cent goes to the seller. Never does the purchaser get the benefit of it.

Willing to Please.

"These stocks of yours are worthless."

"I don't care," said the woman. "The broker is very accommodating. He has exchanged them four times."
