Open house at new center draws 1,000

Terminals had not arrived in the computer labs, and not every classroom had desks, but students and would-be students seemed to enjoy seeing the new Wayne State University Oakland Center in Farmington Hills Sunday.

About 1,000 attended during a four-hour open house, said Sharon O'Brien, director of the Oakland Center on 12 Mile Road west of Farmington Road in Farmington Hills.

"The turnout was amazing," O'Brien said. "It was far beyond our expectations. They were lined up at the door. We had our people come in early so they wouldn't have to stand out in the heat."

The Oakland Center, located in the former Texas Instruments Building, has been renovated to fill 100,000 square feet and houses 74 classrooms. Outside, there are 1,300 parking spaces in the newly lined lot.

About 200 courses will be offered for full credit at the center, O'Brien said, and about 3,000 enrollments are expected to be taken.

There also will be limited academic and financial advising offered at the Oakland Center.

"The idea is to bring the university to the suburbs," O'Brien added. "This is a state university, and we're trying to reach as many students as we can."

Sunday brunch set for Aug. 27

A Sunday brunch that includes a salad bar will be offered by the Frank A. Marshall Chapter of the Order of Daughers from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 27, at the Farmington Masonic Temple, Farmington Road and Grand River.

In addition to salad, the menu includes eggs, sausage, bacon, hash browns, pancakes, toast, juice, coffee and tea or soft drinks.
