FRESHMAN COLLEGE STUDENTS EARN CREDITS FOR WORK

Of the 48 students of the Farmington Freshman College who ended their first year of college work Friday, fourteen will receive credits acceptable at any university where Wayne University credits are recognized.

The last of the final examinations were written Friday and have been graded by the faculty. Although the names were not made public, only fourteen did work worthy of earning credit.

Organized in September

The Farmington Freshman College was organized last September as part of the national movement to provide an education for adults and high school graduates who could not afford to attend a college or university. The various freshman colleges in general were well received and whole-heartedly supported in the localities in which they were organized and placed.

The colleges were financially supported by the Federal government through FERA appropriations. Administration of the colleges however was handled through universities in the territory. The Farmington Freshman College was one of approximately 100 colleges which was under the jurisdiction of Wayne University, Detroit.

"There is a 'crying' need for adult and freshman college education," states William R. Leslie, director of the Farmington Freshman College. "The Federal government, in establishing and financing the freshman colleges, is showing that it recognizes this need," says Mr. Leslie.

Correspondence and business schools could not exist if this need were not vital. In Michigan alone there are 600,000 high school graduates of college age (16-25) and only 6000 are continuing their education.

"The Freshman college idea has brought to light the appalling number of high school graduates who wish to continue their education but are financially handicapped.

Prove Worth

"It is almost certain that the freshman colleges have proved their worth to such an extent that they will be organized again next year and possibly become permanent.

"This year, due to the speed with which the colleges were organized, adult and freshman college education were combined. It is probable that, if the colleges continue next year, adult and freshman college units will be separate.

"Since it is not definite whether or not the freshman college 'experiment' will be continued, it is impossible to say whether or not there will be a unit in Farmington, concluded Mr. Leslie.

Protect Yourself AGAINST Weather Changes

You cannot change the weather, but with insulation you can fortify your home against weather changes. Insulation maintains an even temperature within the home regardless of the weather conditions outside.

Keep summer heat outside by equipping your home with insulation.

The economy of insulation will show itself in reduced winter fuel bills.

HARRY S. WOLFE of Farmington, represents our company in this territory. He will be glad to call upon you.

Uncle Sam Will Help You Through FHA Financing

The U. S. Government recognizes insulation as one of the greatest modernization factors in the home and it is a big part of the FHA program. Ask us, or your local bank, how you can easily finance insulating of your home.

Moose have been reported on Isle Royale as far back as 1880. For the past 15 years the moose have been comparatively abundant on the island. Paul Hickie, mammalogist of the Department of Conservation, in a rough estimate said there are probably 400 moose on Isle Royale.

BLANCHARD OWNS 3000 POUND MULE TEAM

Just as poets get lyrical over a sunset or moonlight on the water, farmers get light up and his tongue moves freely when a 3000 lb. team of horses is mentioned. Almost anyone who has lived close to old Mother Earth is able and willing to tell you of the "mighty" team they once owned or knew of.

And it is true, according to the old timers, that, especially in this section of the country, a team tipping the scales at 3000 lbs., is a "right sizeable bit of horseflesh."

So naturally, when one hears of a pair of mules weighing over 3000 lbs., Missouri is immediately adopted as the home state and with the state, its slogan, "you've got to show me."

Well, it's true. Ernest Blanchard has recently purchased a pair of mules that weigh over 3000 lbs. He bought them "sight unseen" from Iowa. Like all good farmers, Mr. Blanchard knows he made a real buy and it doesn't take much to get him started on the virtues and accomplishments of these two particular mules.

"You can't kill them with work," he will tell you. "These mules," he said, "if they are fed properly will outwork 25 out of 100 teams of horses." The only reason mules are not used more extensively is that they are too hard to handle. Mr. Blanchard will tell you however that his are a gentle and manageable as kittens, thus the "good buy."

There are about 2,000,000 women doing office work in the United States today.

"BITTER SWEET" OPENS AT NAVIN FIELD SATURDAY

Next Saturday, July 6th, will see the opening of the week's engagement of "Bitter Sweet," Noel Coward's great musical success, being presented by "Opera Under the Stars" at Navin Field. Coward, the greatest name of the English-American stage, is responsible for both the lyrics and book of "Bitter Sweet."

Coward's versatile ability is readily recognized when it is realized that the same man who wrote this lovely production is also responsible for "Design for Living," "Cavalcade" and "Private Lives." "Bitter Sweet" is one of those rare productions where the music and lyrics are written by one and the same person, with the result that both are blended together and that neither seems to be an interpolation, as is so often the case.

The very name, "Bitter Sweet" suggests the character of the story revealed in dramatic action upon the stage to the accompaniment of Coward's charming melodies. It is the story told by the flaxtheloness of Shayne as she advises Dolly Chamberlain who faces the dilemma of being engaged to one man and being in love with another. That story ranges through more than half a century. Although it is laid in the fashionable London of today, as the tale is told, there are "cut-backs" to the London of 1875 and the gay "90's" and to the Vienna of 1880.
