Botsford Inn listed in history register

The Botsford Inn in Farmington Hills has just been entered in the National Register of Historic Places, which makes it eligible for federal preservation grants.

The inn at Grand River and Eight Mile, which was established in 1836, was nominated to the register by the Michigan History Division of the Department of State.

"The inn was nominated because the history division believed it to be a site of outstanding historical and architectural significance," said Martha Bigelow, director of the Michigan History Division.

It is the oldest operating inn in Michigan on the National Register, according to innkeeper John Anhut. "I'm delighted by this honor," said Anhut, who has operated the 143-year-old landmark for 28 years.

"We're in the position where we should be able to perpetuate the inn for immortality and continue to be a credit to Farmington Hills," he said. Anhut purchased the inn from Seaboard Properties, a personal real estate holding company of auto magnate Henry Ford.

Many of the Ford family's own pieces of furniture remain in the rooms of the inn.

There are 60 guest rooms, dining rooms, meeting rooms, and wedding reception facilities at Botsford.
