Causes Of Hypertension Difficult To Determine

About one person in five will have high blood pressure (hypertension) in later life, but medical science does not know why.

Dr. F. James Conway (M.D.) of the Hypertension Unit at The University of Michigan Medical Center had this to say about it: "Certain disorders of the kidneys and endocrine glands cause a few cases of high blood pressure, however, we never identify an actual cause in most patients."

Salt, fatty diets, and the rush and stress of modern life all seem to contribute to hypertension, he said. "Although each has been blamed for causing the disease, nobody has been able to prove it."

DR. CONWAY spoke on a university radio broadcast co-sponsored by the State Medical Society and the U-M Medical Center.

"The person who leads a rushed and harrassed life will aggravate a hypertensive disorder," Dr. Conway pointed out.

"Overweight also cause great or suffering from high blood pressure. But neither stress nor over-weight nor heavy salt diets by themselves will cause the disease."

Even though scientists do not now why hypertension appears, they have good evidence of what it can do to your body.

"There are three major changes," Dr. Conway said, which take place over a period of years:

"Blood vessels harden and you become more likely to suffer a stroke or heart attack.

"Your heart grows larger because it is forced to work harder.

THE KIDNEYS suffer. Specialized blood vessels in the kidney grow thicker and fail to function the way they should."

Dr. Conway said common symptoms of hypertension include shortness of breath, weakness and headaches.

"Unfortunately these symptoms can be caused by a great many different disorders; hypertension during a routine physical check-up. Most likely, you will feel perfectly well at the time."

Views on Road Problems Vary

Property owners in attendance at the South Farmington Civic Association meeting last Thursday evening expressed varied views on what they felt to be the best method of improving road conditions in the township.

Opinions expressed on a special questionnaire handed out to the approximately 100 property owners in attendance at the meeting have not yet been completely tabulated. A general study has revealed, however that each of the three methods proposed for improving both road and drainage conditions were favored by some, Association President Norman Peterson commented. The three proposed methods of improving conditions were: 1) The setting up of special assessment districts. 2) The levying of an additional one mill tax township-wide for roads. 3) Continuing with the present road maintenance program with any possible improvements that can be made.

Some people answering the questionnaire were critical of the way the county road commission was grading the roads, Peterson said. They felt the work was being done incorrectly, he stated.

Guest speakers at the meeting were Sol Lomerson of the Oakland County Road Commission and Township Supervisor Curt Hall.

No Stickers Needed in Parks This Summer

Michigan park users will not be required to have entrance stickers for their vehicles this year, the Conservation Commission ruled during its June meeting at the Higgins Lake conservation school.

The state's new parks permit law calling for annual $2.00 and daily 50-cent sticker fees to retire a bond issue which will finance parks improvements and land acquisition goes into effect August 17.

However, the Commission felt it would be unfair to charge fees at this late point in the parks season. No date was set as to when the sticker requirement would begin in 1961.

COMMISSIONERS need more time to study a detailed report prepared by Conservation Department parks officials before they decide at which parks or portions of parks stickers will be required when collection does begin. The report itemizes each park's general attendance, camper days, facilities, its expected revenue from stickers and other information.

The Detroit law firm of Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone was chosen to work out legal details of a bonding program, subject to approval by the Attorney General. An attorney representing the firm recommended that the Commission undertake a conservative program at the start, explaining that higher interest rates are charged on the first issue.

THE PERMIT LAW provides for a bond issue not to exceed $5,000,000 during the 1960-61 fiscal year. Not more than $1,000,000 may be spent to acquire land with the remainder to go for capital parks improvements.

The Commission cannot formally adopt a bond resolution listing proposed land purchases and improvements until August 17. The resolution must have legislative approval and since the legislature is adjourned, it probably will not receive final action until sometime in 1961.

Cites Need for Versatility

With college enrollments soaring, we will have to put more stress on versatility of teaching to compensate for the shortage of teachers, says Algo D. Henderson, director of The University of Michigan Center for Higher Education.

Preparation of college teachers has been a concern of universities for several centuries, and Professor Henderson argues that we ought to have a greater interest today since the problem has been neglected and will become more serious by 1970.

"By 1970 we will nearly double the enrollment of university students to over six million. Even allowing for a 20 per cent increase in the faculty-student ratio, we will need at least 30,000 new teachers every year for the next decade," Henderson says.

GRADUATE SCHOOLS in the country are now producing about 9,000 doctoral graduates each year. About half go into college teaching. "This means that we would need 25,000 more teachers each year to satisfy our need.

"Outside of trying to fill this gap, there are other methods of solution," Henderson says. "We can use our present instructors more effectively."

For more effective use of present personnel, Prof. Henderson suggests an increased student-faculty ratio, independent study and television.

Serve Salad Greens Cold, Crisp and Dry

Cold, crisp and dry is the way salad greens should come to the table.

Home economists at Michigan State University say the salad dressing is added at the last possible moment because acid and salt cause the greens to wilt and break down rapidly.

When using a dressing that's already mixed, add a little at a time until leaves are lightly coated. If you prefer to use oil and vinegar separately, add the oil first until the leaves are delicately coated, then add the vinegar and seasonings. Try about one part vinegar to three or four parts of oil.

There are actually a variety of oils and acids you can choose for salad dressings. The oil may be olive oil, corn oil, cottonseed, soybean or peanut oil, but it should be fresh.

The acid may be cider, wine, malt, tarragon, or herb flavored vinegar, lemon or lime juice, or a combination of vinegar and lemon juice. Selection of oil and vinegar, plus herbs and seasonings should enhance the flavor of the salad ingredients.

If a cake recipe leaves you with extra egg whites or egg yolks, home economists at Michigan State University suggest you hard cook them. Then sieve the egg yolks and chop the egg whites for salad garnishes.

Farmington's Leo Meagher Seeks 18th District Nomination

One of the candidates for the Democratic nomination to the U.S. Congress for the 18th District (Oakland Co.) will be Farmington's own Leo P. Meagher, 29097 Tuley Road, Wood Creek Farms Village.

Meagher (pronounced ma-her) is no newcomer on the political scene. In 1958 he was the Democratic nominee for the office of State Senate and for Oakland County treasurer in the primary.

Meagher is a member of the State and National Real Estate Boards, a member of the Detroit and State Retail Druggists' Association and former member of the executive board, a member of the Oakland County Pharmacists Association and a former chairman of the Oakland County Democratic Business and Professional Committee. He belongs to various other business and professional organizations as well.

Meagher worked his way through college. Attending the Wayne State University (then Detroit-City College) he became a licensed pharmacist at the age of 21 and has owned three drug stores.

Meagher has spoken out strongly for legislation to protect the small businessman. On housing he feels that the point system must be abolished and that interest on long-term FHA loans must be reduced. Passage of a bill to assure minimum medical care to our aged, and aging is a must, he has asserted.

On the matter of Civil Rights, Meagher has said: "That All Men Are Created Equal' must be made a realistic National policy, not just a fanciful phrase."

Citrus Sections

For attractive orange and grapefruit sections, home economists at Michigan State University suggest the fruit be pared with a sharp knife. Cut deeply enough to remove all of the white membrane, then separate the segments from the dividing membrane.

Scientists are seeking the still unknown reasons why some babies are born with heart defects, says the Michigan Heart Association, which is supporting research in heart and blood vessel disease.

Defense costs per family in the United States are about $1,000 a year.
