The "Centaur Post"

A column that appears every now and then in this space to let you know what's going on at Centaur Farm Stables.

CHANGES MADE

For the past several weeks the carpenters, the carpet layers, the remodelers, the flag makers, and heaven only knows how many other craftsmen, have been very busy around Centaur Farm Stables, located at 6600 Drake Road near Walnut Lake Road in West Bloomfield Township. It won't be long now before we will have a special announcement for you! It's been very exciting, and very activity, too, we might add, for the word has been "business as usual" and not a soul (including nighty or so horses) has been inconvenienced.

MORE ABOUT LIPIZZANERS

In our last column we promised more information about the treasures that the famous Lipizzaner stallions are capable of performing.

The first of these is the Piaffe, a graceful "marking time" by the horse which is taught in several stages. By controlling the movements of the horse with a longeing rein and whip, the riding master can shorten the stride of a trot, right down to the stage where the animal is actually trotting quietly on the spot without moving forward at all.

Next in the Lipizzaner training is the Passage, which is merely a slowly forward moving Piaffer and is one of the most majestic and beautiful movements to observe. Further training includes the Pirouette, the Mezair (with elevated forelegs), and later the Levade, Courbette and Capriole. Both the Levade and the Capriole have been the subject of great paintings because they are so dramatic. In the Levade the horse balances on his hind legs; in the Courbette he hops with elevated forehand and deeply bent hocks — a movement once used in battle.

In the Capriole, the most spectacular maneuver of all the horse springs high into the air; when his forehand reaches the highest point he kicks out horizontally with his hind legs, giving the appearance of a winged horse. Horse and rider fall light as a feather through the air, several feet above the ground, all contact with earth left behind for a few moments of graceful, glorious flight.

Needless to say, every Lipizzaner stallion represents years of training, and so do the riders who devote their entire lives to it. This is an art in which horse and man join in sympathy, harmony and concert.

Township Files Suits

have to go to the complete mill.

Under the Township projections the administration estimates that more than $800,000 would go toward paying off the debt. The administration places the revenue to the project if the City gains its way at $79,000.

Farmington Township Supervisor Curt Hall stated that if the City had its way on the payment of the debt, would be "legalized larceny" and observed that "it probably won't be settled easily or amicably settled."

Brennan had asked for the option to file for the injunction if the City officials would not agree to the Township proposal. He pointed out, however, that in accordance with statements made before the election (which he termed "propaganda") the City probably wouldn't agree to the Township's case.

Trustee Earl Oppenhauser stated, however, that he thought the injunction should be obtained before City officials so that the Township would be "in the strongest possible position to negotiate."

Animals

when a group of ladies from the southwest portion of the Township descended upon his office — at the suggestion of the Township officials — with complaints about bulls, sheep and pigs wandering onto the highways and into their yards.

Upon checking Brennan discovered that the Township had no effective ordinance to punish the owners of such animals. "There was a rather complicated ordinance whereby we could seize the animal and have it sold at a general auction by the Justice of the Peace," the attorney said, "but nothing more.

"There is adequate state legislation covering the conduct of dogs." Brennan pointed out as to why that animal was excluded from the ordinance.

"No one owns a cat, cats own people," he asserted in explaining why cats were omitted.

Brennan told The Observer that his family had no animal pets — "just girls" (he has four daughters) and when asked how he was such an expert on cats he said that "I have never heard of anybody who could control a cat."

The Township Board adopted the ordinance on the same night as its introduction, making an exception in its usual procedure because it was a "plain and simple" ordinance.

Effective date of the ordinance is in 90 days.

When the Vietnam crisis grew the team disbanded. Since that time he served as a drill instructor on the army rifle range at Fort Benning. He and his wife, Kay, made their home in Phenix City, Ala.

Halstead Rds., which had been zoned for office in the plan for the entire area, would be under study.

Dinan added that the 10-acre park called for in the land use proposal would probably be added to the City's open space acquisition program in order to take advantage of the federal funds available for this purpose.

The annexation would not become final until 15 days or so after the Oakland Board of Canvassers filed the results of the election with the Secretary of State's office in Lansing. This action was reportedly taken Monday.

Reports have been circulating that petitions to submit to the City Council requesting water and sewer facilities are out in the area.

Abdominal Support

—FOR LONGER LIFE—

Why do widows outnumber widowers? To the traditional team of work and worry, long branded the guilty pair, weight has been so strongly linked by science that dieting, once a woman's pastime, has become a male preoccupation.

And now comes evidence that it isn't just the paunch, but the sag, that hangs on the pallbearers — that the girdles that give the ladies their girlish figures may also be extending their lives.

The idea that control under shorts tightening the abdominal muscles and expanding the chest, improves not merely appearance but health isn't exactly a new one. Long before modern drugs came on the market, doctors prescribed abdominal belts for men with heart ailments.

But new research, reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association, tends to show that the new drugs may be no more effective than the old-fashioned belt — or the modern control shorts. Scripps Institute scientists found that "application of the belt previous to exercise reduced or prevented the abnormal postexercise increase in the amplitude of the A-wave of the apex cardiogram," just as popularly-prescribed glyceryl trinitrate.

How do control shorts help the heart? One famed medical writer, Dr. F. J. Steincrohn, writes that it helps the circulation of the blood, and "thereby takes an unnecessary load off the heart. And when one multiplies this by the heartbeats which add up to a few billion in the normal lifetime, one can understand how a simple abdominal support might add years to a man's life."

Many doctors are suggesting the increasingly popular new types of men's control shorts to their patients, and finding back and breathing as well as circulation benefits. The most popular type, Mandate, "outwrewar that slims," meets the Medical Journal's prescription of a belt "tightly applied to the abdomen in such a manner that it does not disturb the patient's respiration or produce discomfort."
