AUTOMOTIVE

normal conditions and automatically shifts into 4-wheel drive when it senses a slippery road surface.

And for a small sport ute, this CR-V has a really nice ride. Not a Cadillac, mind you, but it's no Geo Tracker, either. The ride is consistent, comfortable, allows easy handling and you won't hear much road noise.

The CR-V has a lot of amenities you wouldn't expect from a small sport ute. Stuff like 3-point seat belts at all outboard seating positions, child-proof rear door locks, reclining seats all the way around, plenty of cup holders, 12-volt outlets in the front and rear and a micron air-filtration system.

The rear hatch is different, but really works to your advantage once you get used to it. Put the key in and turn and it opens the window portion of the rear door, which goes up with the aid of hydraulics. Put your hand inside the license plate area and the rear opens like a door.

That means you've got the flexibility to pop something in the cargo area quickly or load your material at bumper level without reaching over the tailgate. Smart thinking.

Open the tailgate and remove the cargo floor and you'll find a nice addition: a picnic table and a storage well to carry anything from a couple packs of Pepsi to the family's wet bathing suits.

The Honda CR-V is a cute, smartly designed small sport utility vehicle that packs a lot of value into its $20,000 price. Bet Honda sells a ton of these.
