Pregnant and chic: Maintaining your personal style during pregnancy.

In addition, Serota and Gardner, U-M grads who have four young children between them, offer helpful advice about dressing postpartum and dressing for breastfeeding.

Filled with innovative and savvy fashion advice as well as some general "feel good" tips for every stage of pregnancy, Pregnancy Chic is every pregnant woman's stylish best friend.

Top Maternity Style Tips

•Make sure your hosiery is the same color as your skirt or dress. It will create a much slimmer line.

•When you're looking for something to wear to a formal event, check out the vintage clothing store. Look for beaded or lace capes, feather boas, antique jackets or shawls.

•Look for one black dress that's exceptionally simple. Wear it a million different ways — with pearls at night, a blazer during the day or hiking boots on the weekend.

•Rearrange your closet so that the clothes that no longer fit aren't staring you in the face!

•Think about wearing bright colored T-shirts underneath cardigans, blazers or tunics to add a pop of color to your wardrobe. (They don't even need to fit your belly because no one is going to see them anyway — they're just layering pieces.)

•Look through all your old scarves (and even your mother's or mother-in-law's). Scarves are the world's most versatile accessory when you're pregnant.

•Show off the parts of your body that aren't expanding (your slim wrists, arms and neck, for example).

"Pregnancy Chic: The Fashion Survival Guide (Villard, $16.95) is available at all major booksellers.

"The Pregnancy Survival Kit" ($152) consists of a four-piece wardrobe in a box: leggings, a long-sleeve dress, a long-sleeve tunic and a skirt. All pieces are black, and the fabric is a soft, washable cotton/lycra knit. The kit is available at Nordstrom, Lord & Taylor and most major maternity store outlets, or call 1-800-49-MONTH to order.
