New show gives lowdown on entertainment

"Live It Up Detroit" is a new television show including Farmington, Novi and Farmington Hills. S.W.O.C.C. intern, Jonah Sharkey, is a Specs Howard student who has a television internship this spring.

His first completed show is a fascinating entertainment news recap. Farmington Hills resident, talented Stacey Winteringham, is the commentator.

Jonah challenged himself to exercise his skills by incorporating much of the technology options such as: chromakey, animated graphics, freeze frame, remote and studio segments, and AB roll editing.

Jonah aspires to become a movie director and is going to prioritize his energies over the next couple of years to perfecting his skills. He recognizes his crew of Darnell Garrison, Vita Acciaioli, Fran Dudas and Timi Case, who are volunteer professionals readily available and great at adapting to a new director. Kevin Southers and Todd Whitman advised Jonah through the process.
