ington voted against the Monday. Farmington Hills ok action at the May 11 council meeting. In their resolutions opposing the plan, the cities say they pre- use of landfills to incineration, that the plan does not address a number of issues including long-term financing and that the plan appears high in comparison to other alternatives.

"To further complicate matters," Deadman said in his report, "the Michigan Department of Natural Resources has not approved the plan for the county."

Oakland and other Michigan counties are mandated under Public Act 641 to come up with a 20-year waste management plan. Deadman estimated that Oakland has already spent between $5-6 million for engineering costs and landfill locations in preparing its plan.
