WOMAN AIDS IN BATTLE AGAINST TREE DISEASES

The state highway department's fight to protect trees along Michigan's highways from devastating insects has a determined and efficient woman backer.

She is no less a person than Dr. E. I. McDaniel, associate professor of entomology at Michigan State College, who has been telling social groups that the highway department has been doing a good job in insect eradication.

An intensive campaign to rid the shade, nut and fruit trees along the highways was begun by State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner about four years ago. Dr. McDaniel has given advice to the insect fighters.

"I am surprised at the job the department has been able to do with six small crews in the state," she said today. "It has held the walnut datana (a fuzzy caterpillar which strips trees of foliage) to a minimum and is winning out against the elm trees canker worms."

The highway department crews are fighting their battle along 9,000 miles of trunkline front. The average driver rarely sees them, for they're out early in the morning and late at night on the main highways. During heavy traffic hours they spray sideroad trees.

Before any tree is sprayed, the owner of the adjoining property is consulted. Owners of nut and apple trees along the right of way have their trees protected free of charge. That is because insects might otherwise breed there and then infest nearby orchards.

TESTS TO SHOW HABITS OF AVERAGE DRIVER

State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner has announced arrangements to test on three major trunklines the subconscious habits of the average driver.

Findings will be studied to determine new and safer methods of highway construction. The state highway planning service will determine from the results what elements can be built into new roadways which might protect the driver against himself.

The testing equipment will consist of a metal strip placed across highways and designed to be unnoticed by motorists. The actions of each car passing will be transmitted to an electrical recording device called a "transverse placement director." It will spot the exact place on the highway each car takes as it passes and determine its speed.

The tests, to be started within a week or 10 days, will be put in operation alternately on four-lane US 10 south of Flint; three-lane US-23 north of Bay City, and two-lane US-16 west of Lansing.

Reflector buttons will be strung temporarily along the highways when the tests are in operation so reactions to the reflector also may be tried.

If License Is Delayed Ask at Post Office

Harry F. Kelly, Secretary of State, suggests to applicants for motor vehicle operators' licenses who have moved since making application that they inquire at their local post offices if their licenses do not reach them within 14 days after application has been mailed. Usually five-day service is given. Delay is occasionally experienced when mail sent to old address is not forwarded promptly to new address by their local post office.

Mr. Kelly also advises you to notify your local police or sheriff's office of any change in address, in conformity with the motor vehicle laws. Officers will then notify the Department of State.

MUST SHOW TITLE BEFORE RECEIVING AUTO LICENSE

Car owners who now have only first half year license plates and wish to obtain second half tags are reminded by Harry F. Kelly, Secretary of State, that they must have the title to their car with them and must also surrender the plates they are now using. Many motorists leave their titles at home and are vexed when they learn that their registration slips are not sufficient under the law to obtain plates. Numerous other persons are disgruntled when they find, when visiting license plate offices, without their cars, that the first half plates must be turned in before full year plates can be obtained. They forget that the first half plates are good until August 31 and that their plates might be illegally used by some other person on another car. In the secretary of state's offices such plates are destroyed just as soon as a car owner turns them in.
