Facts About the Telephone

In this country, 12,000,000 miles of telephone wire are used in toll and long distance service.

Day and night telephone service is now commercially available between Finland and Switzerland.

The construction of a large central laboratory equipped for research work in long distance telephony and telegraphy has recently been completed in Moscow.

Telephone service between Belgium and France, hitherto restricted between the principal points of each country, was recently extended to include all the subscribers in both France and Belgium.

Telephone traffic on the Antwerp-Brussels and Brussels-Ghent circuits has become so congested that the Telephone Administration has decided to lay a new direct cable between Antwerp and Ghent.

For the year 1929, the distribution of the transatlantic calls by countries at the European end was about as follows: England, 52 per cent; France, 32 per cent; Germany, 8 per cent; other countries, 8 per cent.

The Czechoslovakia Telephone Administration is about to begin the laying of a new cable between Mistek and Mihrisch-Ostrau, which is designed as part of an international circuit to connect Prague with Poland and Germany.

It is claimed that glaring abuses exist in America, and one of the worst of them consists of the glarnig headlights carried at night by many automobiles.
