

Budding architects take note at LIT

High school students are reminded that Sept. 23 is the deadline for registering for the Lawrence Institute of Technology (LIT) School of Architecture's pre-college program.

High School Juniors and seniors are offered the chance to attend college level classes in either fine arts or architecture on Saturdays from Sept. 26 to Jan. 30.

In addition, a program in interior architecture will be offered during the spring term, Feb. 8 to June 5, 1982. Students can choose courses in drawing and composition or basic design, as well as a seminar in art and architecture which will include field trips to museums, galleries, and the Frank Lloyd Wright designed Aileck House.

They may take any one of three classes, any combination, or the whole program. The cost for each of the studio classes in either fine arts or basic design is $80.

The art/architecture seminar tuition is $30. It is also estimated that materials for a full program could cost an additional $100. Students may either bring materials from home or purchase them in the college bookstore.

This is the fourth year for the program and many of the previous participants are now enrolled in colleges and universities throughout the Midwest.

Admission is limited to those high school Juniors and seniors with a B average who otherwise meet the standards of admission to the college.

College credit toward a bachelor of science degree in architecture or interior architecture will be awarded upon successful completion of the course with a grade of C or better.
