Lansing, Sept. 21—Sunday hunting laws, now applicable to 14 counties in the lower peninsula of Michigan are not uniform in their provisions and regulations in one county "closed to Sunday hunting" may not pertain to another county listed similarly, according to the Department of Conservation.

In the following counties listed as having "no Sunday hunting," hunting is permitted if one obtains the consent of the owner or lessee: Livingston, Macomb, Oakland, St. Clair and eight townships in Wayne and Macomb Counties. The townships in Wayne and Macomb listed under those regulations are: Greenfield, Redford, Plymouth, Gratiot, Hamtramck, Grosse Pte., Northville and Livonia. The regulations for these townships in Wayne and Macomb counties do not apply to shooting wild water fowl in the Detroit and St. Clair Rivers and Lake St. Clair.
