SOFT DRINK INDUSTRY GROWS IN IMPORTANCE

A recent observance of National Beverage Week called attention to the growing importance of the soft drink industry in the United States. Nearly 7,000 soft drink bottlers, employing approximately 100,000 people, utilizing more than 50,000 trucks in distribution, sold over 13 billion half pint bottles of carbonated beverages to the American people last year for about one-half billion dollars. The consumption of soft drinks has shown a steady increase, jumping from a per capita consumption of 43 bottles in 1935, to a per capita consumption of 95 bottles in 1940.

The Bureau of Foods & Standards and the Chemical Laboratory of the State Department of Agriculture have played a very important part in guaranteeing the consumers of Michigan a supply of soft drinks manufactured and bottled under sanitary conditions, and free from all harmful drugs and other ingredients that might be injurious to health.

Leo V. Card, Commissioner of Agriculture, said, "Michigan probably has the strictest soft drink law of any state in the Union. Our law prescribes what a soft drink may consist of and how it should be labeled. It also provides as to the type of building that can be used in the manufacture of soft drink, how bottles or containers must be sterilized and how every bottle or container, when filled with a soft drink, must be distinctly marked with the true name of the drink and the name and address of the manufacturer. Many out-of-state bottlers, even though they do not market much of their product in Michigan, register their product in this state because it is generally known that a beverage that will pass the requirements of the Michigan law has to be good.

"During the fiscal year ending July 31, 1940, 240 beverage plants and 301 dairies were licensed in Michigan with the Department of Agriculture to manufacture and sell soft drinks. During the past two years Foods & Standards inspectors have obtained official samples of all soft drinks offered for sale within this state, and over 1,600 samples were analyzed by the Chemical Laboratory. Samples are taken periodically for a laboratory analysis, and the plants are being continually inspected for sanitation. This assures the consumers in Michigan that any beverage registered for sale within the state is complying with rigid requirements of the law in regard to purity of the product and the cleanliness of its manufacture."

Boys' Catch Envy of Experienced Anglers

Two 11-year old anglers whose catches have put those of veteran trout fishermen to shame are Bobby Awrey of West Branch and Jimmie Arndt of Brooks Corners, near Evart. Bobby took a four pound rainbow from the West Branch of the Rifle river where it flows under Houghton avenue bridge in the town of West Branch. Jimmie got wet when he dunked into Postal creek and reached under a log to get both hands on a big brown trout that had taken his worms and spinner bait, but the effort was worth it. The trout measured 26 inches long, tipped the scales at five pounds 13 ounces, and won the prize offered by the Marion Rod and Gun club. The boys have six more years of fishing before they will have to show a conservation officer a fishing license.

Addis Ababa, in Ethiopia, now has its modern water supply that provides sufficient pure water for all purposes.
