Hatchery Bonding Asked

LANSING The Department of Natural Resources is seeking $225,000 in recreation bond money to underwrite an in-depth engineering study on a modern, mass-producing warm water fish hatchery proposed for Southeastern Michigan.

The funds are a top priority need under the DNR's request for about $3.5 million in recreation bond money to finance fisheries work during the current fiscal year.

If appropriated, the funds will enable the DNR to contract a professional consulting firm to draft detailed engineering designs and refine the department's early cost estimates for the hatchery, projected to produce some 74 million young warm water fish for planting each year.

A key part of that exhaustive study will be the location of a 250-300 acre site in Southeastern Michigan which offers open space, high quality surface water, and other crucial features to serve a hatchery of the major dimensions planned by the DNR.

Schoolcraft Instructor Selected

Donald A. Rykarsky, instructor of business courses at Schoolcraft College since 1964, has been selected to participate in the University of Michigan leadership development program in administration of vocational and technical education.

Rykarsky is one of 50 persons selected from among 54 applicants for participation in the 1970-71 program, according to Dr. Ralph C. Warrick, program director and head of the U.M. School of Education's department of vocational education and practical arts.

The U.M. leadership program is divided into two parts: an intensive eight-week summer workshop at the university, and an internship during the balance of the academic year. Purpose of the program, which the university conducts in cooperation with the State Department of Education, is to identify, select, and develop persons for leadership roles in vocational and technical education. The program has been in operation since 1964.

Math Teacher Will Study

Rex Moorhead, mathematics instructor at Schoolcraft College since 1968, has been accepted as a participant in a National Science Foundation summer institute in mathematics for two-year college teachers this summer. The institute will be held at San Jose State College, Calif., from June 22 through July 31 and has as its principal objectives the strengthening of the participants' mastery of teaching mathematics and improving the teacher's ability to interest students in careers in mathematics and science.
