2 Services For Christmas Eve.

Christmas activities of Franklin Community Church are climaxed with two traditional Christmas Eve services.

At 7:30 p.m. a Nativity Tableaux sponsored by the Church School will be offered, re-enacting the original Christmas tale. At 11:00 p.m. the "Midnight" service sponsored by the Choirs of the Church will be held again, planned to end exactly at midnight. During this service the Choir will sing some of the traditional melodies of the season and the congregation will join in singing the familiar carols.

The highlight of both services is the traditional lighting of the Vigil candles, lighted from the Christ Candle on the Altar by each member of the congregation. These candles are then taken home and left all night in front of the manger scene on each family Altar, to be snuffed only after reading the Christmas story from the Holy scriptures the next morning. A "Christmas in the Home" ritual is also given to each family for their personal use in their home.

Decorations in the Sanctuary for the Holy season have been planned on a star theme, featuring stars and candles, in simple arrangements. At the Christmas eve services large Vigil lamps will also be on the windowsills.

S'field Church Services on Xmas Night

The Southfield Community Church, 21122 Indian (near Eight Mile and Inkster), will hold its traditional Candlelight Carol Service on Christmas night, December 25, at 8:00, according to the Pastor, Raymond Bayne.

In a lovely setting of candles, color urns, and evergreen decorations, families will honor Christ on His birthday with the singing of Christmas carols. Both the national and Scriptural origins of the carols will be narrated by the Pastor. There will also be special music by the choir, under the direction of Howard Redman, Minister of Music.

On Sunday night, December 27, at 7:00, the church will feth its college and Bible School students home for the holidays. A large number are at Bible Schools and colleges preparing for full-time service as missionaries and ministers and will have part in the service that evening.

The various youth groups of the church will go caroling on Christmas Eve.

Set 2 Services Christmas Eve.

Special Christmas Eve Candlelight Services will be conducted at the First Methodist Church of Farmington again this year.

The Christmas Eve Candlelight Carol Service will begin promptly at 7:30 p.m. and many old and familiar carols will be sung by both choir and congregation.

The Chancel Choir, under the direction of Clarence Juhnke, will sing the Christmas Anthem "Glory To God" by Kessel.

The minister of First Methodist of Farmington, Richard T. Markham will speak on the theme "The Hush of Expectancy".

All those in attendance at the service will receive a glass holder and candle used during the service.

At 11:00 p.m. the Christmas Eve Candlelight Communion Service will begin. This will be a simple service of meditation and devotion followed by the Administration of Holy Communion.

A warm welcome to all to join in worship and song during this blessed Christmas season is extended.

Salem Invites Public On Christmas Eve

The Salem United Church of Christ on Oakland at Grand River in downtown Farmington will hold its annual Christmas Eve. service at 11:30 p.m. on December 24.

This will be a candlelight service.

All residents of the community and their friends are invited to attend. The service will be conducted by Rev. Carl Schultz, minister for this church.

There's A Real Art to Being A Perfect Hostess

"What a wonderful party!" Do your guests say that the next day? If you use a little foresight, they'll say it and mean it. Planning and attitude are the keynotes to becoming the charming hostess you've always known you are.

Most people think a party begins when the guests arrive. This isn't true. It actually begins when you first invite them. Make your invitation list with a view to how well the personalities mesh. People won't enjoy themselves unless they're able to elicit some form of response and recognition. They have to blend and feel they're essential to the balance of the party.

When they first arrive, be happy to see them. A warm smile at the door will make them glad to be present. Introduce them to everyone and guide them into conversation with other guests. See to it personally that quiet, shy Freddie gets a chance to talk to that pretty girl in the corner—he's been admiring but doesn't have the courage to approach.

If cliques form and they will if you leave your guests alone—certain members of the party will be neglected. It's your job to keep people mingling. A hint to a member of one group that there's someone in another group he or she would like to meet often solves the problem. If the hint doesn't work, subtly drag them together.

Food and drink, primary elements of any gathering, require planning, too. Serve foods that are interesting, gay exotic if you wish, but avoid the eccentric. Make sure there's a generous supply. Heaping bowls and well-stacked platters make a wonderful impression. You can always shove the left-overs into the refrigerator for tomorrow's lunch.

You owe it to your guests to be thoughtful and discreet about liquor and its use. You don't want everyone inebriated after one drink. Tall highball glasses and a good addition of mixer subtly slow up the process. If you're worried about not having enough ice, before the party put two pitchers of water in the refrigerator. When the ice-trays are empty, fill them with this chilled water. It'll freeze faster.

Club soda is becoming more and more popular at parties because of its neutralizing effect on the stomach and the liquor. The next morning isn't nearly as painful. The better club sodas contain natural salts that soften the impact and point up the flavor, like salt on a steak.

For your cocktail minded guests, put your glasses in the refrigerator an hour before the party. The frosted effect is impressive—another little thing your guests will remember.

Star That Led The Wise Men Still Unknown

Which of those ancient Christmas lights in the sky was the Star of Bethlehem?

Nobody knows for sure, says University of Michigan astronomer Hazel M. Losh (Ph.D), who finds that popular interest in astronomy reaches its peak during December as the religious and festive occasion of Christmas approaches.

Symbols of the season may be seen in the heavens," Professor Losh explains, "and our attention is drawn to the sky and stars in some vain effort to interpret astronomically the mystery of the early Christmas star.

"Although we are reminded by the limited descriptions and uncertainties of the early calendars that exact astronomical explanation of the time of identity of the Star of Bethlehem's appearance is out of the question, the planets are always promising and alluring.

"The planet Venus is often pointed out as a possibility," Professor Losh says. "This year Venus shines as a morning planet in the eastern sky for about three hours before the sun rises and easily could be interpreted as the 'sign.'

"Special groupings or configurations of planets also have been suggested as possible versions of this historical miracle."

"The Northern Cross, or Cygnus (the Swan), is steadily moving toward the west and may be seen to advantage in the evening hours. After dark Christmas Eve this Cross will be standing upright against the northwestern sky, a beautiful symbol of the Christmas season," she adds.

"The brightest star of the whole heavens, Sirius, also attracts attention during this month. From time immemorial, this star has been watched, admired and revered, rising as it does in the early evening around Christmas time. A line through the three "star of the east" pointed to by the Three Wise Men.

Christian Science

The ever availability of the scientific power taught and practiced by Christ Jesus will be emphasized at Christian Science services Sunday.

Readings from the Bible in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Christian Science" will include the following: "Now the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, that ye may abound in hope, through the power of the Holy Ghost" (Romans 15:13).

Selections from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will include this statement (565:13-18): "The impersonation of the spiritual idea had a brief history in the earthly life of our Master; but 'of his kingdom there shall be no end,' for Christ God's idea, will eventually rule all nations and peoples — imperatively, absolutely, finally—with divine Science."

High Death Rate Season Is Upon Us

State Police Commissioner Joseph A. Childs today appealed to all Michigan motorists and pedestrians to watch their step in these remaining days of December, which usually have a high death record.

In the last five years, 13 per cent of the annual pedestrian death toll and 10 per cent of the automobile fatalities have occurred during December. Christmas has the worst death record of any holiday period, with an average of one person being killed about every three hours. The New Year's average is one about every five hours.

Railroad accidents involving cars and pedestrians hit by trains increase sharply, with 12.2 per cent of the year's fatality toll and 15.4 per cent of the injuries for this type of accident.

Major causes for accidents in December include driving too fast in adverse conditions, reduced vision with more hours of darkness, blinding snow and coated or fogged windshields, and the increased holidays hazards due to the rush and excitement of the season and the social activities.

"Just because deaths have always increased in past December doesn't mean that we have to accept as fact that they must again this year," Childs said. "If motorists and pedestrians concentrated on the hazards and increased their alertness, December could be a much safer month."

December usually has the highest death record of any month of the year.

You can prevent the tragedy of a holiday accident by:

1. Keeping your mind on the job of driving and walking with utmost care.
2. Driving more slowly to combat the adverse weather and road conditions and to increase your defense against the faulty driving of others.
3. Using common sense. Don't drive if you have been drinking or are over-tired because of the strenuous holiday round of activities. And don't try to compress long holiday trips into short periods of time.
4. Driving and walking with a purpose to keep yourself and others out of accidents by obeying traffic laws and observing all the rules of safe motoring and walking.

For the youngsters—a good start in thrift habits, in a gay holiday wrapping! It's the special little ribbon-decorated booklet of United States Savings Stamps, one at $2.50, holding ten 25c stamps; the other at $5, with twenty. Either represents a good start toward a U.S. Savings Bond.

We sincerely hope that this Christmas rings in a new era of peace and good will for all the world and much good fortune and joy for you and your family.
