Arrest Gunman In City Holdup

Farmington City Police were quick to act on clues supplied of the armed robbery at Sanders in the Downtown Farmington Center on Monday of this week and have a prime suspect in custody.

Arraigned before Municipal Judge Sylvester Cheney on Wednesday afternoon was Leslie Gingell, 53, of Northville, an unemployed tool and die worker. Gingell was charged with armed robbery for the $150 holdup at Sanders shortly before 7 p.m. on Monday.

Clerks in the store and several patrons who witnessed the robbery supplied police with a detailed description of the bandit and his get-away car which led to the arrest late Tuesday, January 21.

A lie detector test was ordered for the suspect on Wednesday after at least one witness positively identified him as the holdup man.

There is a big change at the Spillmans. Gil has tried very very hard to recover from his stroke, and Dot has done everything possible to help — too much so that it has told severely on her health and she has been in the hospital more than once. She was at home for the holidays, but early this month the doctor decided other arrangements would have to be made.

Gill is now at 29166 Tessmen Ct., Madison Heights. He has a practical nurse to care for him and he is near a daughter who can drop in frequently to see him. Dot is planning to spend some time with her son on State Street in Farmington. But she was called to Toledo by the death of her brother-in-law, Fred Siebert. His funeral was last week, Tuesday, and Dot stayed on with her sister. As I write this, Monday, she has not returned here but is due back any day.

PEARL DOBSON has left the Art Centre Hospital and is now at the Edgewater Convalescent Home, 2861 W. 7 Mile Rd. It is probable she will be there another two to three weeks but we are glad to know she is making good progress and will be glad to hear she is home again in Wood Creek.

Peg and Lloyd Nelson have another grandchild. A son and first child was born by their daughter, Ginny Heuchert, Dec. 16, at Syracuse, N.Y. Daniel Nelson Heuchert weighed 9 lbs. 11 ozs. at birth — both mother and child are in the best of health.

THE SEVAKISES are getting in some skiing. Elsie and Frank spent the weekend before last at Sharp Creek, Delaire. Last Friday they took the children with them to "Pine Knob" in Clarkston.

Wd. Ck. Hearing On Zoning Set

The Village of Wood Creek Farms will stage a public hearing Wednesday evening, January 29, to discuss the proposed zoning ordinance drafted by Vilican-Lexman and Associates, a planning consultant firm in Southfield, who were hired to up-date zoning ordinance.

It will be the second public hearing conducted by the Village on the proposed ordinance and the Village Council is expected to act on its adoption after consideration of matters raised at the hearing. The hearing will be held in the Sarah Fisher Home, 12 Mile and Inkster roads at 8 p.m.

FARC Program Draws 329 Here

The first Saturday in the Farmington Area Recreation Commission's (FARC) Winter Program drew a response from a total of 329 students in the Farmington School District.

Of the nine schools where the doors were opened for the students, Beechview Elementary School received the highest response with 130 children taking advantage of the facilities there.

THE AVERAGE for the entire nine schools participating in the FARC Winter Program was 37 per cent of the total enrollment at each school. An even greater response is expected during the balance of the Saturday activities scheduled for the six-week program.

The schools available to the FARC Winter Program students are Eagle, Kenbrook, O. E. Dunckel Jr. High, Beechview, Shiawassee, Ten Mile, Farmington Jr. High, Cloverdale and Gill Road.

The minimum age for participation is eight years old. Seventh graders are asked to participate at junior high schools along with eighth and ninth graders. There are two junior high schools open for the program. All other students can participate at any of the elementary school gyms.

Farmington to Be Among First To Get 'Push Button' Phones

Farmington will be among 15 communities where push-button telephones will be offered this year, the Michigan Bell Telephone Company announced this week.

Hughes C. Bronaugh, manager here for Michigan Bell, said the newly introduced Touch-Tone telephones (on which numbers are tapped out on buttons instead of being dialed) will be available in December.

Touch-Tone, twice as fast and easier than dialing, is the result of 15 years of development and testing by the Bell System and represents a major change in the appearance, use, and function of the telephone.

With the push-button system, telephone switching apparatus responds to musical tones sent over the lines instead of electric impulses of the present dial.

Bronaugh said the service will be made available on a gradual town-by-town basis over the next several years.

THE NEED FOR a gradual introduction stems from the fact that major equipment modifications must be made in telephone central offices before the new service can be offered in individual communities. Such modifications will enable the equipment to handle both the conventional dial signals and the musical tones of Touch-Tone.

On the new push-button telephones 10 buttons replace the customary disc that contains 10 finger holes. The buttons are centered on a block of three rows, three buttons to a row. Beneath the three rows is a single button which corresponds to the "Operator" position, or the last opening of the present dial.

In pointing to the speed and convenience of Touch-Tone service, Bronaugh said tests have shown that it takes from eight to 14 seconds to make a call by dialing, but only two to five seconds by depressing buttons.

The new telephones will be offered in any of the standard colors and models for both business and home use as an optional service at a moderate extra charge per month.

Other communities on the 1964 schedule for Touch-Tone include Traverse City, Monroe, Midland, West Bloomfield, Ann Arbor, Howell, Lansing, Centerline, Flint, Birmingham, Dearborn, and Southfield. In Detroit, the service at first will be offered to some business subscribers in the downtown area only.

Bronaugh said the company's schedule for introducing Touch-Tone will open immediately following approval by the Michigan Public Service Commission.
