

Cable show to focus on activities for singles

Bob Brickner of Farmington Hills has completed the remote classes for television production.

Bob is interested in producing a program targeted at single people, to take their focus off meeting the significant other to focus on doing things just for the fun of it.

From desperation to doing, Bob would welcome anyone of an enthusiastic nature to participate on his remote crew. This video can anticipate going where the action is.

Channel 12 viewers will know what is going on in the metro area of Detroit any day of the week. For example, did you know that the Stratton Oaks tennis pool side lane every Thursday night? To be part of this on location crew, leave a message for Bob Brickner at SWOCC, 473-7266.

Have fun, meet people and practice your new television skills.

Residential Window Film

WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT

Solar window films were originally designed for heat and glare control and, in many cases, the use of such an application meant comfort and energy savings.

Today, consumers are spending more and more time in the home and investing great amounts of money in furnishings. To protect the furniture, carpets, art objects, etc. they are utilizing window film, which absorbs nearly all of the sun's damaging ultraviolet rays that damage the home's interior.

Window film has been designed and refined to such a point of sophistication that it is practically invisible. In fact, the fade protection of the film neither alters the appearance of the window, nor distorts the original clear view.

Tinted windows, contrary to belief, do not lead to the dark to be effective. In fact, the newest of films offer high visibility and high energy control. An example of a recent innovation—and the biggest seller in the glass industry—is the Low-E (low emissivity) film, which helps the glass retain or hold in more heat in winter.

In addition to protecting home furnishings and dramatically cutting down on the sun's glare, another important benefit from using window film is its ability to make the glass safe for "breakable". Should the window break, the film will actually hold broken glass together, offering safety and security. For example, should a child or adult hit a window hard enough to break it, they are much less likely to suffer any cuts or be showered with dangerous glass shards. Special "extra-thick" security films are also available.

In the past, one of the drawbacks of using window film was its tendency to become scratched when cleaned. Today, however, all films boast a scratch-resistant coating which is tough enough to stand up against even fine steel wool.
