

What has become of the old fashioned girl who refused to get married unless she could have a church wedding?

Advertisement for Seiberling All-Treads tires, featuring an illustration of a tire and the slogan 'YOU DON'T HIT SEVENTY OFTEN BUT WHEN YOU DO PICK A CLEAR ROAD AND SEIBERLING ALL-TREADS TO DO IT ON'.

A. C. WALLBANK AUTO SHOP Phone 155 Farmington, Mich.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, The Probate Court for the County of Oakland. At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Pontiac, in said County on the 10th day of March, A. D. 1927. Present, Hon. Ross Stockwell, Judge of Probate. In the Matter of the Estate of WILLIAM L. BUCK, Deceased: Irene G. Buck, having filed in said court a petition praying that the administration of said estate be granted to the petitioner or to some other suitable person, It is Ordered, That the 11th day of April, A. D. 1927, at eight o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for hearing said petition; It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order once each week for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Farmington Enterprise, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county. ROSS STOCKWELL, Judge of Probate. A true copy. Ruth Immick, Deputy Register of Probate. Mar 24-Apr7

STATE OF MICHIGAN, The Probate Court for the County of Oakland. At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Pontiac, in said County on the 21st day of March, A. D. 1927. Present: Hon. Ross Stockwell, Judge of Probate. In the Matter of the Estate of VIOLA SOPER, Deceased. Isaac Bond, administrator of said estate having filed in said court a petition, praying for license to mortgage the interest of said estate in certain real estate therein described. It is Ordered, That the 18th day of April, A. D. 1927, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for hearing said petition, and that all persons interested in said estate appear before said court, at said time and place, to show cause why a license to mortgage the interest of said estate in said real estate should not be granted; It is Further Ordered, That public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Farmington Enterprise, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county. ROSS STOCKWELL, Judge of Probate. A true copy. Ruth Immick, Deputy Register of Probate. March 31-April 14

HACKETT AND DELMAR AT TEMPLE THEATRE Jeanette Hackett and Harry Delmar, vaudeville's youthful producers, offer their sixth annual revue "Luxuries" as the headlining attraction at B. F. Keith's Temple Theatre starting next Sunday. Featured with Hackett and Delmar are Betty Riemann and Margie Hallick assisted by a peppy singing and dancing ensemble including Helen Miller, Gladys Miller, Irene Griffith, Mary O'Rourke, Friciella Thompson, Edna Norris, and Billy Sedore. "Luxuries" is the finest production staged by these youthful producers and is replete with brilliant musical numbers. Others billed: Brown and Whitaker in their latest comedy offering "Here This Week," A. Robbins, "The Walking Music Store," Powers and Wallace in a happy blending of humor and sentiment called "Georgia on Broadway," Owen McGivney, distinguished protean actor in "Bill Sikes," a quick change dramatic episode from Dickens; Ted and Al Waldman in a humorous musical offering "Blasphemy," "Parisian Art," featuring Beulah Stewart; Martin and Martin and the screen subjects.

Botanical Gardens It is very likely the Jardin des Plantes, Paris, has the largest collection of living plants. The catalogue of this institution enumerates more than 20,000 species. The Jardin was founded in 1635 by a physician to Louis XIII, and occupies about seventy-five acres. New gardens, the royal botanical garden near London, which has its branches in every English colony, is certainly not far behind. The largest in this country are probably the Missouri Botanical garden, St. Louis, and the New York Botanical garden, the Bronx.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, The Probate Court for the County of Oakland. At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Pontiac, in said County on the 10th day of March, A. D. 1927. Present, Hon. Ross Stockwell, Judge of Probate. In the Matter of the Estate of LENA GIES, Deceased. Sophia Liverance, administratrix of said estate, having filed in said court a petition praying that the time for the presentation of claims against said estate be limited and that a time and place be appointed to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands against said deceased by and before said court; It is Ordered, that four months from this date be allowed for creditors to present claims against said estate. It is Further Ordered, that the 1st day of August, 1927 at nine o'clock in the forenoon, Eastern Standard Time, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for the examination and adjustment of all claims against said deceased.

ROSS STOCKWELL, Judge of Probate. A true copy. Florence Doty, Deputy Probate Register. Mar 24-Apr7

STATE OF MICHIGAN, The Probate Court for the County of Oakland. At a session of said Court, held at the Probate Office in the City of Pontiac, in said County on the 12th day of March, A. D. 1927. Present, Hon. Ross Stockwell, Judge of Probate. In the Matter of the Estate of MARY ETTA COX, Deceased. Minnie L. Rubart, administratrix of said estate having filed in said Court a petition praying for the examination and allowance of her final account, determination of the heirs of said deceased, assignment of the residue of said estate, and the discharge of said administratrix; It is Ordered, that the 11th day of April, A. D. 1927, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, Eastern Standard Time, at said Probate Office, be and is hereby appointed for hearing said petition; It is Further Ordered, that public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing, in the Farmington Enterprise, a newspaper printed and circulated in said County. ROSS STOCKWELL, Judge of Probate. A true copy. Florence Doty, Deputy Probate Register. Mar 24-Apr7

Didn't Call It Puppy Love

By RUBY DOUGLAS (Copyright.) THERE was something rather pathetic about the amount of love that Arthur Emmerson bestowed upon his dogs, long since he had felt that there was so much to give, in this big, splendid man, that it should have been lavished upon human beings as well as upon dumb animals. His oldest colts, Lad, never left him, whether he drove or slept or worked at his desk. Little Lady was a stay-at-home but she was affectionate and constant. When Arthur's wife had died, it seemed as if the dogs knew he was grieving and were even more watchful of his comings and goings. The sympathy they extended when they laid their long, aristocratic noses in his lap and looked up into his eyes, meant more to him than the words of many persons. It was three years now since Arthur and the dogs had made their home alone together and they had been faithfully tended by a housekeeper who understood. Little Lady added gaiety to one cold winter morning by presenting her master with five beautiful fluffy colts pups. There was much rejoicing and Lad was fed on the finest milk in the larder and great hopes were planned for her offspring. "They're show dogs—every one," said the big owner to the rather disconcerted colts, Lad. Lad was so reluctant to the pups but he wandered about with a lordly air that morning as if he were proud to be in the house with so good-looking a litter of puppies. Events frequently cast their shadows beforehand, and it was not so long before Arthur Emmerson found himself showing two of Lady's puppies at the county dog show. He did not like to put his pets into the tiny kennels in which they are kept while they are being admired by the public and shown to fanciers but he managed his business so that he could spend a great deal of time during those three days at the show. "He's a beautiful animal," a soft voice said at his elbow one afternoon when Count, one of the pups, had won a blue ribbon in his class. Arthur turned to confront a most attractive woman. He grasped his cap awkwardly. "Yes—he's a lovely colt." There followed much dog talk. Miss Yall, too, was a lover of dogs and this was the third time she had shown her pets. Her home was in the opposite end of the county and she and Arthur Emmerson had never met nor heard of each other. This was not strange even with their common interest because Arthur, as a married man up till three years ago, had never gone out of the little town circle of his wife's friends. Miss Yall, recovering from an unhappy love affair, had retired from society entirely. Arthur walked with her to see her dogs, and before they parted each had given the other a card and promised to exchange visits when either motored in the direction of the other. "And if you ever have another litter of puppies that has a colt half as fine as this Count, do let me have him," said Edna Yall when she left. A few letters were exchanged between the two who had met at the dog show and, in the interest of their hobbies, they met again. The almost instant recognition of a loneliness in the man's eyes that Edna Yall had detected as she watched him looking at his pets became, when she saw him again, a certain knowledge. And with this feeling that here was a lonely man, her sympathy went out to him. Perhaps she did not know it, but they were in the same state of emotions. He was just beginning to react to the world after losing a companion and she was realizing that the world is not completely lost because one romance has paled into nothingness. Neither the man nor the woman was experiencing a first love and thus it dawned on them very slowly that a second blooming was coming into their lives. Perhaps they both sought it, true to an ideal that had gone. Perhaps that was why it was nearly two years after they had met that Arthur finally asked Edna to marry him one night as they drove through the lovely county in which they lived. A moon silvered the pine trees and shimmered on the river below them. "I wonder if that moon will always shine so silvery for us, Edna," said Arthur in a deep, serious tone she had learned to love more than anything else about him. "Why not?" she asked, her voice so tremulously as if she were eighteen and this was her first proposal. "It seems almost, after we have passed through our sorrows, as if we never could be quite so optimistic again." "Maybe not, but we understand better how to—to look at life in all its fullness, Arthur," she said. "We have lived a bit before this moment." "Perhaps that's why it seems a higher peak than any I have climbed yet, dear, and it makes me a little afraid." "After a long time Edna took her head from his shoulder and laughed. "What is it?" he asked, accustomed, by this time, to most of her whimsical moods. "No one can call this 'puppy love,' can they, dear?" she asked. "They might," he retorted, kissing her and joining heartily in her joyous mood.

To Farmington Voters:

As a city we are one year old. During the first and most trying year we have been very fortunate to have as our Mayor, Wells D. Butterfield, who has led us in the laying of the foundation upon which to build the future of our fair city.

Under his Administration we had a clean city.

The old mud roads, such as Warner and Rogers streets have been graded and built over. The low unsightly sidewalks around the Town Hall and elsewhere have been relaid, to say nothing of the "foot walk" built over the creek on Grand River and the hundreds of feet of cement walks laid about the city. Our places of business and homes have all been systematically numbered. The street lights have been greatly improved as well as having a new traffic light and fire siren installed. A survey and investigation of the present sewer system has been made. Negotiations are now made with the County to build an adequate sewer system and take care of our needs for some time to come. These and other improvements together with the change from a village to a city have been made with a slight increase in taxes. From a study of the taxes we found about 50% was used to pay the indebtedness accumulated in previous years. Thus we have had an aggressive and yet economical administration.

A VOTE FOR MR. BUTTERFIELD IS A VOTE FOR A SAFE AND SANE ADMINISTRATION

This advertisement is paid for by friends of Mr. Butterfield, without his knowledge or solicitation.

WHEN in need of printed stationery of any kind, place your order here. The best of work guaranteed. THE ENTERPRISE

Advertisement for Hudson Super-Six car, featuring an illustration of a man sitting on a bench and a woman standing next to a car. The text reads 'HUDSON Super-Six'.

They Do Turn to Admire

The Super-Six principle freed to the limit now admittedly excels any development thus far known. There is nothing with which to compare it in performance, stamina, safety and economy of operation.

Its seven beautiful new bodies share with its brilliant performance in the greatest reception of all Hudson history. HUDSON SUPER-SIX Standard Models Coach $1285 - Sedan $1385 Custom Models Brougham $1575 - 5-Passenger Sedan $1750 - 7-Passenger Sedan $1850 All prices f. o. b. Detroit plus war excise tax.

W. F. GOERS LAKE DRIVE GARAGE FARMINGTON PHONE 211