

College channel expands local viewing options

CABLE CONNECTION

There are new channels to watch and live programs to be involved in on your local television viewing. Channel 20 is now being hosted by Oakland Community College. They have a cooperative relationship with the College Cable Channel. Programming, therefore, will be locally produced, as well as productions resulting from other sources. Channel 20 may be seen 24 hours a day, seven days a week. What is delightful is that some of the programs are college courses, and yet are fascinating documentaries to watch.

Now if you would like to actually participate in a program, you may be a part of a studio audience at MetroVision for Channel 12. Plan ahead for the program entitled "Seniors Beware." It is produced by Harry Robertson. The program will be taped on Thursday, Feb. 25 at 2:30 p.m. at the MetroVision studio. Call Mary today for your reservations, and put the date on your calendar. The phone number is 473-7266.

The show will deal with being swindled, teletrauded or scammed. Have you had an experience like this? Share it with the rest of the television audience. We can look forward to more innovative uses of television in the next year, as our communities, cities and businesses become more involved in the local channels.
