26 Report For Football Practice

Twenty-six candidates for the Farmington High School football team are practicing daily in preparation for their first game of the season which will be played with Brighton High School Friday afternoon, October 4, at Brighton.

With only little over a week remaining before the first game of the season, Coach Kammerer is putting his team through rigid drills in order to make up for time taken away from practice owing to the delayed opening of school. In the meantime, the Brighton team will have played two games before it meets the Farmington eleven. In its last game it defeated Pinckney showing the power of a heavy team which averages 160 pounds. However, most of the players are inexperienced.

Although Coach Kammerer is not making any predictions as to the outcome of the game, he is confident that it will be well worth seeing judging from the exhibitions of his backfield during recent periods of practice.

Under the impetus of incorporation plans, which are rapidly near completion, and the addition of two new members, the Farmington Skeet Club continues as the main sporting attraction of Farmington and, according to reports, several surrounding communities.

Following a meeting held Monday evening at which final arrangements were made and a board of Directors consisting of Harrison Johnson, Marcus Burrows, Curt Hall, Howard Warner and William Pruvo was elected, it is confidently expected by members that the incorporation will be complete within a week.

The two new members who shot at the club for the first time Sunday are Earl Mills of Northville, district manager of the Detroit Edison Co., and J. Hendricks of Detroit.

It is estimated by Kenn Loomis, that 50 rounds were shot Sunday. The meeting was witnessed by the usual large number of spectators. Several sportsmen from Wayne and Northville shot during the day. The club is open to anyone who may wish to shoot. Although there are members, the club is by no means private.

DETROIT INSTITUTE OF ARTS TO OPEN LECTURE SERIES

Dr. Comm. George O. Naville, of the North Pole and around the Michigan its first view of the 1933-35 Byrd Antarctic Expedition at 3:30 p. m. Sunday, Sept. 22, at the Detroit Institute of Arts. Speaking with motion pictures on "Byrd from Pole to Pole," he will open the World Adventure Series program.

Commander Naville will tell how the 56 hardy explorers, including the Army's first Round-the-Antarctic fleet and a year and a half in the Arctic, lived and died during the utter bleakness and cold of the South Pole winter, how they explored during the dazzling, icy summer by airplane and dog-sledge and did 450,000 square miles to the known map.

This intrepid explorer has richly earned his title "Trail Blazer of the Air." At 14 he convinced a hard boiled recruiting officer that he was 18 years old, and joined the Navy. Within two years he had twice circled the globe. His brilliant flying record on the World War Italian front won him five decorations. He was advanced to the Army's first Round-the-Antarctic World flight, was first superintendent of the U. S. Continental Air Mail. He was Byrd's companion and right hand man on his Transatlantic Flight, and on his North Pole and Second Antarctic Expeditions.

During its first fall season, the World Adventure Series, civic and non-profit lecture organization, will present 20 noted explorers, scientists and travelers. Junior Adventurers, now Saturday morning lecture course for boys and girls between 12 and 19, will feature such men as Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and Dr. Roy Chapman Anderson.

Monthly lectures by the nation's foremost are critics and scholars, more exhibitions of national importance, a new program of popular gallery tours and radio talks, and increased activity along other fronts will expand the public service program this fall and winter at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Little Progress Seen in Work On Mysterious Log Structure

What is it? When will it be completed? Who's building it? These questions as well as many others have been in the minds of Farmington people who have seen what seems to be the beginning of a log cabin located on Farmington road and the Cutoff.

Mysteriously several men have been working on the structure for about three months. They evade all questions pertinent to their work. Unless they are trying to pull the well known wool over the equally well known eyes, one is left with the impression they are just as much in the dark about the subject as the persons whose fruits of their labor which at the present time consist of a rectangle of logs neatly fitted together three deep.

While no attempt has been made to locate anyone in this vicinity who can recall the time when the planners began work on their hazy projects, it is taken for granted that no one with this knowledge can be found. On this basis the story continues as you can see by a glance.

It has been said planners were pretty hard-working people and that when it came to building log cabins they didn't fool. However, they had other things to do so being less aware than most people are now of the fatality of its all they worked like everything until they completed their cabins so that they could start on something else.

Now, it is taken for granted they, the planners, had to clear away any trees because it is mentioned in the log books that they built their cabins on clearings. And being very practical people they used what they cleared away as the wherewithal to build their houses. Although it probably could have been ready made. And yet work continues much to the curiosity of people who feel that nothing should be concealed from them and at the same time that the cabin should have been completed long ago.

WORLD SERIES TICKET APPLICATIONS DELAY FARMINGTON MAIL DELIVERIES

Until recently the attitude of Norm Lee, Farmington postmaster, was letters come and letters go but nothing ever happens. In this frame of mind, Mr. Lee and his assistants sorted on and on never believing there would be anything to interfere with their efficiently devised system to expedite the delivery of mail.

Everything went along very smoothly without anyone in the office worrying about a thing. It was not until the mail began to fall behind in its schedule for delivery.

Although no one wanted to confess to his fellow employees, the alarm he felt for the security of the system had been so patently developed, it became apparent to the people who wait in the post-office to receive their mail that things were not going along as well as they seemed. The mail delivery was continued until the tenacity of the post office atmosphere could be felt by even a casual visitor.

School Enrollment Passes 500

J. A. Dalrymple, superintendent of Farmington schools, reports the enrollment this year on being over 500, or 20 greater than the attendance last year. This is the highest number of pupils that has been reported in recent years.

Of the total number of pupils, 250 are enrolled in grades one through eight while there are 257 in the higher grades. One hundred and fifty students are classified as non-urban.

The number of students enrolled in Lynn Rohrer's commercial course is creating a difficulty unforeseen by school authorities. Already the figure has reached 245 with 70 or more taking bookkeeping. As a result of this the building formerly occupied by the domestic science department is being used to take care of the overflow of commercial students. At the present time, Mr. Rohrer is being assisted by Miss Lamb, office assistant, and by advanced students until a new arrangement can be made.

REV. F. JOHNSON MAY TAKE CHURCH IN CALIFORNIA

Rev. Floyd Johnson, who for the past month has been in Arizona with his wife and daughter on a two months leave of absence from the Farmington Methodist church, is expected to return to California, where he is to take charge of a daughter, Amayllis to Arizona on the advice of physicians in the hope the climate would help her to recover from a severe illness. Recent reports have indicated that her health has greatly improved. However, it is thought best she remain in the West until she has regained her health completely.

Rev. Johnson is well known in Farmington, having been pastor from 1920 until 1923 at the Methodist church. Before the expiration of his five year contract an opportunity came to him to accept a position in Pontiac, Michigan, to have him leave, but at the same time not wishing to interfere with his promotion, the church board released him from his contract.

Until August of this year, Rev. Johnson remained in Pontiac with his family, having been pastor of a Methodist church in Palestine, Texas, which he spent shortly after Easter. When he returned he found his daughter sick and realized the necessity of her being taken to the best climate. On condition that he return to Pontiac, Rev. Johnson was given his leave of absence. However, since circumstances have become such that he will be unable to return at the appointed time.
