Suggests Flower Garden To Put Picture in Picture Window

A picture window is almost standard equipment for the modern small home. The name is based upon the assumption that the window looks out upon a landscape view.

Many such windows are seen obscured by shrubs, grown too tall for the low house they are intended to decorate. Others are left uncurtained, since the only view is one of a bare front lawn, and street.

But the picture window in the illustration achieves its purpose, thanks to the attractive flower bed planted in front of it. On the low, one-story houses which now dominate new building, flowers in the front yard provide an attractive frame and decoration for the usually plain design.

Violas are cousins of the pansy, but have a longer flowering season, especially when shaded. They are excellent for planting in front of a house which faces north. The color scheme, and flower varieties suggested in the sketch, can be varied.

A modern effect in decoration is obtained when flowers are planted in masses of a single color, rather than in mixture, or in patterns. A ribbon planting of a dwarf flower of contrasting color is often grown around the edge of the bed.

Dwarf growing varieties are most in favor, to keep the planting low, so the view from windows is unobscured, and the low-set house is not made to seem lower.

Low growing annuals which are suited for use in front yard flower beds and borders include:

- Blue Chiffon delphinium, viola, petunias, ageratum, anchusa, pom-pom asters, alyssum violet queen, cynoglossum, lobelia, dwarf morning glory, nierenberg, phlox, nasturtium, marigolds, nasturtium portulaca, ananvilla, cupid and lilliput zinnias.

Yellow and orange Calendulas, dwarf calliopsis, orange cosmos, dioranthopsis, California poppy, nasturtium, marigolds, nasturtium portulaca, ananvilla, cupid and lilliput zinnias.

- 1-VIOLA CORNUATA, YELLOW
- 2-VIOLA CORNUATA, BLUE
- 3-PETUNIA, RED

EXTENSION OFFERS FREE TRAINING TO LEARN SEWING

Your wish to make your own clothes, or your children's clothes, to save money and have garments that are original need not be an idle one.

Many homemakers without previous training or sewing experience have learned the skills as part of the program of their home demonstration group. Training is provided by clothing specialists from Michigan State College's Extension Service. They train leaders who in turn train local group members, and it is all free.

For women with small children there are special classes for making children's clothes. Last year members made more than 500 children's coats and other garments and saved more than $2,000. They made more than 3,000 dresses for themselves and saved nearly $20,000.

Instruction is set up so that you progress from simple garments to more complicated patterns and fabrics. If you know something about sewing you can start with a more advanced group. You will be pleased to learn new finishes and shortcuts in sewing.

Home demonstration members like their home sewed garments because they believe they are more satisfactory than readymades in material, construction and fit.

Other phases of clothing are also presented to the members such as facts about the new finishes for fabrics and the use of new fabrics.
