A Timely Suggestion . . .

has been offered by the Farmington City Manager which we believe deserves prompt action. It would put an end to a great many complaints and save the city countless dollars.

The suggestion pertained to the establishment of weight limits for trucks traveling on our city streets. Several times a year residents file complaints with the Council regarding heavy trucks which are using our secondary city streets. This is particularly true on those through streets running from Grand River south to the Cut-Off. In many cases they travel far too fast and carry much too heavy a load for the type of street.

The speed not only endangers the lives of other drivers as well as residents on the street, but the heavy loads break up the hard-topped surfaces of the road, resulting in additional expense to the city each year for street repair and re-building. It would even be a little different if there were no primary hard surfaced roads to travel on, but there are.

An ordinance could and should be drafted limiting heavy through truck traffic on the city's secondary streets. Trucks delivering supplies or goods to houses along a street should be allowed to use them, but through heavy traffic should be eliminated. If it would put an end to a lot of legitimate complaints and would save the taxpayers a great many dollars.

It is an ordinance the city has needed for some time and it should be enacted as soon as possible.

Too Practical . . .

apparently for the politicians is the proposed St. Lawrence Seaway Project. This "pay things back" theory just doesn't go in Washington.

Under the proposal for the Seaway, revenues from the completed project would be used to pay back for the requested loan, and that just isn't cricket, evidently. It is alright to spent American dollars all over the world with no strings attached, but when a business-like plan is proposed, oh heavens, no.

We have always prided ourselves on the fine cooperation and relationship experienced between Canada and ourselves. It is as essential that this feeling continue as it is to strengthen the favor of our democratic friends in Europe. Even more important, it is a constructive step toward greater economic progress for both nations.

A lot of valuable time has been lost as a result of our indecision and wrangling. We cannot expect Canada to stand by forever. They have indicated that they will begin work whether we come into the picture or not.

But apparently the whole thing is far too practical. Now we just can't have that sort of thing, can we?

If Tax Cutting Talk . . .

is just "daydreaming", as Senator Estes Kefauver terms it, then we had better start unting up a lot of easy chairs, because there are an awful lot of "daydreamers" around.

The only thing about it, Senator, most of them aren't even sitting down. A large number of proposals have been made by committees and individuals on how tax money can be saved within our Federal Government, and they aren't just "daydreams" either. They are, however, rather unpopular among those who want to continue enlargement of the power and control of the central government, and many of them are in the driver's seat at the present time.

If there is any "daydreaming", Senator, it is being supplied by those who have enjoyed dreaming up record budgets. The excuse that present taxes must either be continued or increased because of the military situation is strictly an excuse. No real American wants to go back on his obligation of working for world peace and of helping his friendly neighbors. Tax money is going for a great many things other than those of the military or of foreign aid.

Taxes can be cut and the efficiency of the Government increased. Reduction in the number of government employees would be one place to start. Then we might cut down a few of the bureaus within a bureau, eliminate the reams of printed material that pours from Washington into the nation's wastebaskets every day, sell off some of the surplus office equipment sitting around unused and reduce stock inventories. These "little" items are not figments of the imagination, Senator, they are very real, especially when you and I and the other fellow have to pay for them.

'Watch It Boys!'

By GENE ALLEMAN

June 26, 1952! Do you remember it? It was a blistering hot Monday. But people weren't talking about the weather. They were talking about names that were still strange on their tongues... Pong-yang, Seoul, Pusan.

The day before, while Michigan had taken to the road to dodge the heat wave, North Korean forces had crossed the Republic of Korea borders and were advancing with the speed of Hitler's panzers.

Today, June 26, 1952, Michigan Civil Defense officials are preparing to set up a 24-hour aircraft spotting service. Twenty-seven states, including Michigan, that ring the vulnerable northern perimeter of the nation, will go on the alert July 14.

But, with only 9,000 volunteers lined up in Michigan, and 18,000 needed, CD chiefs worry about the many of people whose lives have been on the whole quite unchanged by the Korean "police action".

That apathy is due to the rapid oscillation of news, from good to bad, from the 35th Parallel.

There was the period of shock when American soldiers entered combat, the shrinking beachhead at Pusan, the bitterness of defeat, the once mounting hope, spurred by MacArthur's brilliant land at Inchon and the GI drive toward the Yalu. The gloomy days of the epic retreat from the Chosin Reservoir again gave way to hope when truce negotiations began a year ago.

But the protracted sessions in the city of Panmunjon have dulled America's tenseness. You can't stay at hair-trigger alert indefinitely without the stimulus of danger. Maybe Union Joe has his truce talk strategy on that fact.

How, then, to find 9,000 volunteers to man ground observation posts?

Brig. Gen. Lester J. Matland, Michigan CD director, believes the "cards-on-the-table approach" is the way to do it.

"We're not trying to scare anyone," he affirms. "We're just going to present the facts. I think that's all the American people need... to know the danger their country faces."

"Russia has 400 operational bombers... and the atom bomb." Matland came back from the Yucca Flat atom tests with a soldier's respect for the potency of the bomb. But "proper preparation and a well organized Civil Defense Corps can combat atom attacks," he is sure.

By the Arctic route, Matland points out, Michigan and its huge war plants are close to Russia. Detroit, Flint and Grand Rapids are critical targets; the Soo Locks are "island targets," just as tempting to the Red Star fly-boys.

"We'll never start a war. If one comes it will come when Russia starts it... and we'll know about it when their bombers hit." "A $300 million radar network enables us to track planes in from (Continued on Page Three)

Bible Comment:

Hebrew Prophets Saw Law and Order In Creator's Work

In reading the Book of Job it is important to remember that it is an ancient drama in which various characters are speaking. It is not in each instance just who the speaker is. Otherwise we may find ourselves taking as the "word" of God statements of Elishah, Bildad, or Zophar, all three of whom are specifically represented by God, eager in the Book, not having spoken the "thing that is right."

The late Professor Moulton, in his "Modern Reader's Bible," sought to guard such misrepresentations of Biblical truth by presenting and arranging the Scriptures in their proper literary form. This is particularly helpful in portions of the Bible like the Book of Job.

But in general the practice of taking texts at random, or even understanding the use of the Bible is not conducive to an enlightened study of the Bible, in which every passage ought to be read in relation to its setting and content.

But if one must read the Book of Job with care to realize who it is speaking in the various portions, it is only in considering the Book as a whole that its full significance and message appear. All leads up to certain concluding passages regarding the fact of God and His world.

The Hebrew poets and prophets laid hold of the great, positive, incontrovertible fact of a world that could not be, or be upheld, without a Creator and Ruler. They found evidences of law and order and goodness. And they related the moral law and order to the law and physical universe.

They declared the glory of God, and the firmament sheweth His handiwork. Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night sheweth knowledge.

EVITA PERON
It isn't often that the illness of a nation's first lady can change the political life of a country, but that's what's likely to happen in Argentina.

Evila Peron, glamorous wife of the Argentine dictator, is dying. The lady who began life as a cabaret performer and rose to capture the love of the Argentine lower classes and the hate of the upper classes, has cancer. Doctors have warned that she cannot last the summer.

White it may not be pleasant to sit by and watch a woman die, nevertheless the capitals of Latin America are coolly calculating what will be the effects of Evita's death on a revolution and war.

Last fall she was operated on for a cancerous condition. In December her doctors came to the decision that she could not be rescheduled, advised that with rest and care she might live two years.

Evila obeyed the doctors' orders until the end of February. By then she was feeling so much better that she decided the doctors were wrong. Besides she got to working behind her social aid foundation, her charities, and her work in the labor department.

On the night of May 24, however, following a small dinner at the presidential palace, Evita collapsed. The news was kept secret for 72 hours while extensive blood tests were taken. Then four physicians broke the news to President Peron that his wife had only weeks to live.

A meagre official announcement which referred only to the "recurrence of the first lady's previous complaint" was not to set off a wave of demonstrations all over Argentina. Special masses were celebrated and pilgrimages to Buenos Aires were organized by Peronists workers.

But none of the loyal followers knew that their beautiful, sometimes ruthless patroness was on (Continued on Page Five)

Looking Back Through The Enterprise Files

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO (June 30, 1927)

Speaks To Graduates
"The student of today has a magnificent educational background and is obligated to live up to it." Dr. Lynn Harold Hough, widely known Methodist minister of Detroit, told seniors of Farmington High School at the commencement exercises in the Community Hall Thursday night. Superintendent A. G. Leonard introduced Secretary Floyd Nichols of the Board of Education, who presented diplomas to the seniors.

To Open Park
The new Edgewater Amusement Park on Seven Mile Road will open July 3. It will occupy 40 acres on the former John Kravie property. The park will contain one of the largest semi-open ballrooms in Michigan with a 4,000 person capacity.

TEN YEARS AGO (July 2, 1912)
A region-wide blackout is being planned by Civilian Defense officials to be held early in July. Farmington residents are asked to be on the alert for the blackout warning siren as no advance notice will be given. Army ordinance officers have notified more than 250 war plants in the Detroit Metropolitan area that they must prepare to blackout, or obtain permission from their supervising Army officers, which will permit them to stay lighted during the blackout because of the necessity of war production. Telephone calls have flooded the Detroit Office of Civilian Defense from plants requesting information on the proper blackout procedure.

Send Women
The first meeting to organize a Medical Corps under the local Civilian Defense program was held Wednesday evening at the City Hall. Dr. Z. R. Aschenbrenner, head of the Medical Division of the Civilian Defense Council, presided at the meeting. The greatest need at the present time is to secure more women who can and will attend a training class which would teach them competent nurse's aid work.

Bond Sales High
Sales of United States War Bonds and Stamps went over the top in Farmington for the month of June. Total sales were $30,600. It represents a gain of more than $10,000 over May sales.

FIVE YEARS AGO (June 26, 1917)
File Petitions
An entirely new group of candidates has filed petitions for membership on the Board of Education of the Farmington Township School District. It was announced Monday evening. Neither of the retiring board members, Dr. Z. R. Aschenbrenner nor Jess A. Early, filed. Eicher, Gerald Downs and Fred Wilkinson.

Program Starts
The summer recreation program for boys and girls of Farmington and vicinity will again be carried out this summer. Superintendent O. E. Panckel announced the program. Beginning Monday, June 26, the program will follow very much the same schedule as in previous years.
