ROLLING
DOWN THE RIVER

By Bob Kettler

On this morning a most surprising smart gentleman drops in and before we can say "tricky," up and buys a brand-top Studebaker convertible from us. He's much surprised that so powerful a salesman can come in such a compact package. As a matter of fact he gives it considerable thought, but finally dismisses the whole idea with the remark, "after all, size is relative and very deceiving." There's many a woman's thumb in this man's town, that has a man under it.

Personally, it doesn't matter much to us how all that power goes to work, that's something the engineers to figure out. We are just pleased to know it's there whenever you need it, in any emergency. This beautifully made Studebaker of ours is really tops in power, comfort, economy and ease of handling. It's a driving thrill that you shouldn't miss, and there is no reason why you should. Come on around, we'll be very pleased to give you a demonstration.

Now we hear that not too long ago a certain lady accompanies a new acquaintance to the race track, and for the first time hears of the betting device known as the daily double. Now in this "daily double" thing, a person must pick the winners of the first and second races, which is something that not even the owner of the track can do too often. Wishing to bet, she asks the advice of the new boy friend and he says, "why not bet your eye?"

So the gal bets number three in the first race and number one in the second race for a ticket reading 31. We suppose all would have been well, except when the numbers 41 and 51 came out as the winning combination and pay $239.00, the poor girl faints.

Well there is always an element of chance in such things and we don't go in for such things very strongly. We like the sureness of our mechanics much better, where in all climates the chance is eliminated. When they say your car is okay, well it's okay, and ready to give you more miles of trouble-free driving. Why not have them give it a complete check-up before starting on that vacation or week-end trip?

That's that, but they tell us the answer to many a girl's prayer is some young man's question.

Yours,
BOB KETTLER
