

Combined Effort of Number Makes Play A Huge Success

The Farmington Players' presentation of "The Hidden River" closed last Saturday night to an enthusiastic audience. Pioneered an artistic success by Players' Vice-President James Allison, the drama was given professional interpretations by every member of the cast and crew.

Director Roy Brown was particularly pleased by the lighting effect created and controlled by John Terry, Makeup by Virginia Wilson, Albert Mullin and Ronald Jackson was effective without being garish. Hair styling was by David Pressley, Scenic by Birmingham.

Coffee between the acts was served by Hope Nahstoll, Mary Ann Perry and the ticket committee, George Nahstoll and George Mullin, in an alcove of varnished shutters set in the Junior High School foyer.

The final performance was judged the best of the four shows, having the best timing and the most polished acting. From the prologue delivered by

"Peanut Bowl" Games Conclude First Year of Junior Football

Last Saturday the Farmington Junior Football Association teams played in the first of what is intended to be an Annual Peanut Bowl game at the Farmington high school football field.

The freshman and varsity Rockets played against the Dearborn Lions two teams and just two close and suspenseful games.

Playing good solid football, the opposing teams battled right down to the wire with the outcome of the game in suspense till the last von the Dearborn team 12 to 6.

The varsity teams played a see-saw type of game right till the last whistle, with the Farmington Rockets fighting hard to lead all the way in the game. The Rockets held the good Dearborn team several times in near goal line stands, and though they gained well when the ball was returned to them, the score and the game went to the Lions 6 to 0.

Sponsored by the Farmington Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Peanut Bowl was a well organized post season extravaganza. Pre-game ceremonies included the introduction individually of the starting players of each offensive team as well as the calling of the entire roster of each team. Elements of the Farmington Junior High School band then played the National Anthem, just before the start of the game.

Spectators were able to obtain a splendid J. C. prepared program at the game and were able to identify all the players by name and number as well as all the local merchants and organizations who supported the Peanut Bowl.

Chuck Bridges, JC president, and his game committee chaired by Bruce Habermehl, arranged for presentation of trophies to the winners of each game. Presentation was made to the Lions team captains by Russ Thomas, former Detroit Lion lineman and board member of the Junior Football Association, in the presence of the coaching staffs, and Richard Habicht, President of the Association, and Mr. Bridges.

For a brisk day the turnout was pretty good, and the ticket sale as well as the profits from the sale of the refreshments will net the Association a goodly sum with which to meet the initial years expenses. The costumed cheerleaders, the Junior High musicians, the decorated goalposts, the colorful uniforms of the two teams, and the lively

Ice Follies At Olympia Run Nov. 11-23

The ice follies of 1958, which will be on view at the Olympia Stadium from Nov. 11 through Nov. 23, is planned to be a big extravaganza.

It should, for the total cost is far in excess of $1 million. Just the costumes and scenery for the 20 huge and costly productions are valued at well over $500,000.

Spectators will get a preview of the 1960 Olympic Winter Games in "Snow Valley" shows as well as a trip under the ocean in the most unusual Western ever staged, "Under Sea".

Children will visit the "Land of Sew and Sew" and their elders will be transported back to the roaring twenties in "College Inn". Other important and eye-catching sequences include "Discovery in Vienna," "Ballot Royale" and "Les Parisiennes" as well as "Evening Fashions of 1959".

The ice follies entourage for the 1958 edition numbers more than 100 skaters. Heading the big cast are such favorites as Richard Dwyer, Carol Caverly, Judy Lawrence, Florence Ray, Janet Champion, Jo Ann Dawdy, Marlene Kistner and Gordon Crossland, Barbara Myers, Glen and Colleen, Lesley Godwin and the Bellies.

There are six fast and furiously funny comedy acts which uphold the Ice Follies reputation for the best in humor. Mr. Frick, the Scarroccos, Wall and Dora, Manning and Gary Johnson endow the show with anti meridian that nicely balances the magnificence of the production numbers.

Tickets are now on sale at the Olympia Box office and at the Grinnell Brothers store on Woodward near Washington Boulevard.

Farmington Girl Scout News

At the recent dedication of the new local post office, Farmington Girl Scouts were well represented. With their troop flags and American flags the girls made an impressive group as they marched in the parade. Training part were girls from Senior Troop 258, Intermediate girls from Troops 783, 270, 178, a nd Brownies from Troops 582, 993, and 217.

After the ceremonies the Intermediate Troop 270, with its leader, Clare Crawford, served donuts and cider to the large crowd who toured the building.

A sea of green literally flooded the downtown Detroit area last week since Detroit was chosen as headquarters for the Great Lakes Regional Girl Scout Conference this year. As a result, uniformed Girl Scouts streamed into five downtown hotels and the Edsel Ford Auditorium for interesting conferences on every phase of Girl Scouting, and inspiring gatherings. A few of the many conference topics were "Developing Challenging Service Programs in Troops", "Imaginative Use of the Total Girl Scout Program in Camp Settings", "Making Troop Budgeting and Financing Good Programs", and "Can Harbored Girls Count on You".

Exciting new ideas were exchanged among Girl Scout volunteer workers from Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana and Michigan, as the four states represented in the Regional Conference.

Representing Farmington at the Conference were our Neighborhood Chairman, Virginia Shigley, and our Troop Organizer, Lois Cort. Serving as assistant chairman of the ushers was a Senior Troop Leader, Bridget Reggan. With such pressing responsibilities, Bridget was obliged to stay right in a downtown hotel for the three full Conference days. All three women said the experience was very rewarding, both educationally and inspiring.

STRIKES AND SPARES

Al Kramer, a senior member of the Our Lady of Sorrows Men's League, found all eyes turned and eight at Farmington Lanes much to his liking a 225 game and 522 series last week. This was the first time in years that Al had combined a 200 game and 500 series.

Irene Berling has agreed to give her husband bowling in a 225 game and 522 series in the Ladies House League this week while John has yet to get in the 220 class this year.

The big question in the Elk's League was how Roy Rosenboom could get tapped so many times and still come up with an even 600 series.

Split makers for the week include Martha Sowers of the Presbyterian League with a 4-7-10 and John Barthol of the Civic League with a 6-7-10.

The Bel Aire Shell team of the Bel Aire Ladies League served notice that they don't intend to stay down in seventh place by rolling a new team high of 763.

High games and series for the week include Dan Waters with a 638 series and Larry Gorman with a 238 game. 11 in the Willowwood League, Vito Letler, a former average bowler, rolled 164. Bob Nance led the Men's House League with a 604 game and was closely followed by Jim Davis' 606. Shirley Murphy rolled a 203 in the Ladies House League.

The Junior Boy's League had a triplicate this week when Jim Jenkins rolled three 123 games in the Girl's J. League. Karen Roberts improved her 77 average considerably with a 141 game.

College Night Held Wed at Garden City

The Guidance Department of Garden City High School, 6500 Middlebelt Road held a College Night on Wednesday, November 5, at 7:30 p.m. It was held in cooperation with the Guidance Departments of the Lee Thurston, Garden City, Clarenceville, Redford Union and Bentley high schools.

College Night gave students an opportunity to meet representatives from well-known colleges, universities, and junior colleges. From these representatives, students learned about: requirements for admission to college, steps in making application, cost of course, cost of tuition, cost of room and board, opportunities for work and information on scholarships.

There were group meetings beginning at 7:30, 8:10, and 8:50 p.m.

Seniors Smile For the "Birdy"

Powell Studio representatives were in Dearbornville Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, November 3, 4, and 5 to photograph the seniors for their graduating pictures.

The proofs will come back to the students within 10 days to two weeks. Then a representative from the Powell Company will come and answer any questions the seniors may have about their pictures, and to take their favorite proof back to the studio for printing.

About two weeks after that the finished pictures will be sent back to Clarenceville and distributed to the seniors.
