FARMINGTON IN 1924.

One hundred years ago Oakland county was settled and at Pontiac recently its first centennial was fittingly observed.

In 1924 eight years hence, it will be 100 years since this town saw the advent of the first white settler.

Moving among us are a few honored residents whose younger years were spent amid the pioneer scenes of the township. They have seen it emerge from the wilderness, with its wild beasts, its blazed trails and its handicaps, to its present state of civilization. To most of them at least there must have been many interesting experiences which would be well worth telling and preserving as matters of historical record.

It has occurred to us, as it has to others, that it would be a splendid thing to talk with them and make a note of many things that they can tell of their personal experience, and of the experience of others, in the days long since gone, when the town was only an outpost on the frontier. We would suggest then, that this be done and the facts carefully preserved, for surely this town will have a "home coming" and celebration befitting the occasion of its first centennial eight years from now, in 1924.

This event will be doubly interesting by a description of the experience of some of the men and women who took part in its early settlement and development.

A lull in political matters has occurred since the primary, but will soon break out again with renewed force. The indications are, however, that it is going to be a hard job to create a great deal of excitement among the laboring classes, and the party orators, who will soon be in evidence, are very liable to speak to empty seats.

In the "wet" and "dry" campaign now in progress the Enterprise will be entirely neutral. We will run the advertising for both, when paid for, but no comments for either side will be made by the editor, and we wish our readers to remember that whatever appears in the Enterprise in favor or against the liquor question is paid advertising.

In accord with a new federal law the duck shooting season will not open until September 15th, and closes December 31st. The state law makes the open season September 1 to December 31, the new act of congress, which went into effect August 15, superseding that of the state legislature.

FAMOUS SPEED

PILOTS TO RACE AT STATE FAIR

Entries Are Being Received From Various Stars

Three days of auto racing will be on the card of the Michigan State Fair, Sept. 10, 11 and 12. The Ford drivers will test their miniature speedsters around the oval Sunday, the first day of the races, to select a new Michigan champion, and the two following days the professional drivers will compete.

Interstate Event Scheduled.

G. W. Dickinson, secretary and manager of the State Fair, is planning an interstate championship event for the two days that the major leagues will whirl around the oval. While all the details of the race have not been fully worked out, it will probably be run on a basis of twenty-five mile heats, three on Monday and two on Tuesday, the winner to be decided on the point system, as in horse racing.

To Carry Michigan's Colors.

The drivers competing in this race will represent the various states from which they hail, and a Detroit driver will proudly carry the colors of Michigan. "Farmer Bill" Endicot, always a favorite with the Michigan speed nuts, will compete, representing the Hoosier state. He asserts he will lower the track record if weather conditions are favorable.

Other Contests Arranged.

In addition to the heat races for the interstate title, for which the Michigan State Fair will bring a handsome trophy, other contests are scheduled for the blanks were blown in the finals last week. Most of the drivers will come to Detroit from Minneapolis, where the Hamline oval will stage its annual big dirt track 100 mile event the week previous.

Entries Close Aug. 23.

Entry blanks for the elimination for the Ford championship race on the Sunday of the Fair were mailed out during the week to the drivers, and the management has been assured of a large field for the semi-pro event. The entries will close Aug. 20.

HORSE POLO CONTESTS TO BE STAGED AT STATE FAIR

Detroit Athletes to Meet Teams From Other Cities.

It is announced by G. W. Dickinson, general manager of the Michigan State Fair, that horse polo will be an innovation at the 1916 exposition, which will be held at Detroit, Sept. 4 to 13.

The Detroit team is in excellent condition for strenuous contests, and arrangements are being made to bring teams from other cities to the Michigan metropolis. It is announced that Dayton and Buffalo will send teams to Detroit during the Fair, and perhaps Cleveland will clash with the Detroiters.

It is planned to have one contest daily, and the Detroiters are busy getting their ponies in the best possible condition.
