much to the joy of a capacity audience Sunday night. Before the performance, which included The Shondels bringing the crowd to its feet with "Money, Money," a private party of about 100 guests of Susie and Mike Gantz of Farmington Hills and Jackie and Mike Kallen of West Bloomfield picnicked on the pavilion grounds.

The party moved to the theater after dinner. Following the Shondels, comic Stewie Stone again brought the audience to its feet to welcome Frankie Valli.

At the end of his performance, the singer was brought back by a frenzied audience which crowded the stage for three encores.

After the performance, the group honored Valli and his cast at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gantz, where talk of Valli and the Four Seasons' hits lasted past 2 a.m.

Asked what prompted such a unique party, Jackie Kallen, an entertainment columnist, replied, "Both Susie and I enjoy entertaining. Frankie Valli is a close friend and, well, we just went from there and the idea developed."

THE PARTY was billed along the lines of Valli's theme, "An evening of solid gold with Frankie Valli."

Among the couples attending were Joel Feldmesser and Ronna Levy of Southfield; Mark and Carl Nocera of Southfield; Larry and Rena Singer of Farmington Hills; George and Phyllis Gouletson of Bloomfield Township; Elwood and Carol Simon of West Bloomfield; Bruce and Joyce Seyburn of Farmington Hills; Allan and Merrily Tann of West Bloomfield, and Bob and Joni Sage of Franklin.

Shelly Morrison prepared a cheesecake which drew compliments from all.

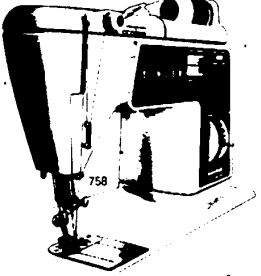

Other guests included Annette Gantz of Southfield; Allan and Janice Kaplan of West Bloomfield; Jerry Adams of Troy, and Mike Novick of Southfield with Iris Kahn of Southfield.
