Red Cross Gives Redford Flood Relief

Fourteen regional delegates from Wayne County are among the estimated 10,000 members of the National Education Association taking part in the annual convention in Dallas, Texas, this week.

"The regional delegates are being joined by representatives from every local affiliate in Michigan," Richard Croll, Metro Area Center Director, said, "Michigan will have one of the largest delegations of all the states," he continued.

Representing the State will be 300 MEA members, local, regional and state delegates.

Among the local delegates are: Donald Bundy, George Calder, John Ort, and Leon Martin--members of the Livonia Education; Boyd Bosma, Redford Union; Donald Louis, Hilda Denmore and Marjorie Frazier of Wayne; Othmar Lenze, Garden City; and Lynne Peterson of South Redford.

Nine seminars on current educational issues, civil disorders, professional sanctions, professional negotiations, the Education Professions Development Act, extremist attacks on the schools, American education in 1984 and urban education, are scheduled for convention delegates.

Flood victims in widely scattered sections of Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties were given emergency Red Cross assistance by the Southeastern Michigan Chapter of the American Red Cross this week even as rains continued to fall.

In accord with the charter obligation of the Red Cross, the chapter provided emergency food and clothing to 56 families in the Pontiac area and 32 family-units in the Redford area.

A Red Cross disaster emergency relief office was opened at the Redford Township Hall, 15145 Beech-Daly, to enable victims to register for assistance based on disaster-caused needs.

Red Cross volunteers and staff working through the week-end provided mobile canteen service.
