Drama Festival Opens July 9

A century ago many people thought actor Joseph Jefferson's name was really Rip Van Winkle. Today some may get the same impression about actor Ken Chomont.

For 30 years Jefferson played the role of the man who slept for 20 years. In all, Jefferson was Rip 2,500 times. He began by using a version of the Washington Irving tale adapted for stage by the playwright Boucicault. But Jefferson constantly rewrote the play himself until it became a property identified almost solely with him.

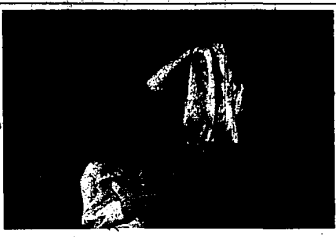

One hundred years after Jefferson became Rip Van Winkle the play was revived in the original Jefferson manner by the Greenfield Village Players. The man who played the title role was Ken Chomont.

KEN CHOMONT enjoyed the role so much that he then set about to create a musical version of the Jefferson play. In collaboration with his friend Patrick McElroy, Chomont co-authored, wrote and orchestrated music for, and produced.

The American Drama Festival will open on July 9 in the Henry Ford Museum Theatre. The opening performance will be the comedy farce "Needles and Pins" which was first presented on Nov. 9, 1880.

"Rip Van Winkle" will come to life once more on July 15 and will alternate with "Needles and Pins" nightly except Sundays for two weeks. Admission to the American Drama Festival is $1.75 for adults and 75 cents for children. Group rates are available.

For more information, call 432-1234 or write to American Drama Festival, c/o Henry Ford Museum, 201 W. Fifth Ave., Detroit, Mich. 48226.

A REAL AWAKENING — A lot can happen in 20 years especially if you have been asleep. Actor Ken Chomont as Rip Van Winkle discovers this fact from a young friend (Karen Roberts) in the American Drama Festival production of "Rip Van Winkle" at Greenfield Village.
