

Height Of Lamps Important

If you buy lamps only by look, you miss more than half the purpose.

While lamps are a decorative addition to your home, their main purpose is to provide light, where and when you need it.

As you shop for lamps, Mrs. Rosalie Hawley, home economist with the Cooperative Extension Service in Oakland and Wayne counties, suggests you keep one simple rule in mind. Table height, plus lamp base height (to the lower edge of the shade) should equal the height of the seated person using the lamp.

EYE HEIGHT, of course, will depend on the height of the chair or sofa seat and the height of the person seated, so one definite lamp height could not apply to everyone, the home economist says.

However, for an average person to see comfortably, the lower edge of the lamp shade should be about 40 to 42 inches above the floor. With this in mind, if you already have a low occasional table, you should have a lamp that is taller than average to bring the light into the right area. If the table is high, then you need a lamp with a shorter base.

A LAMP that provides proper lighting can still be a decorative addition to your home, the home economist adds.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Paterson, of Royal Oak, announce the engagement of Mrs. Paterson's daughter, Terri Lee White, to Gary Van Poperin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Neal Van Poperin, of Livonia. The bride-elect also is the daughter of the late Terrence White. She and her fiance both are juniors at Eastern Michigan University where she is affiliated with Sigma Kappa sorority and he with Phi Sigma Epsilon fraternity.
