

Suspect arraigned in robbery case

A 55-year-old man wanted in connection with the Dec. 20 hold-up of Howard's Beauty Supply in Farmington was arraigned Thursday, Jan. 15, before District Court Judge Margaret Schaeffer and charged with three counts of armed robbery. Edward J. Kelly of Westland was picked up by troopers from the Pontiac State Police Post on a warrant issued in Farmington, said Public Safety Director Daniel Byrnes. Bond was set at $50,000. A court date has not yet been scheduled. According to Byrnes, Kelly was apprehended after an intensive investigation by detective sergeants Murray Switzer and Tom Danek and the Organized Crime Section of the Detroit Police Department.

Band needs musicians

The Franklin Village Community Band, well known for its concerts at community, school, church and service club events, has openings for instrumental musicians.

Bill Ellison, business manager of the 17-year-old group, says attention has depleted the ranks of the "most famous community band in America."

In his plea for new members, Ellison says, "Brass and woodwind instrumentalists are needed for all sections of the band. Age or sex is no barrier. All that is required is the ability to read orchestrated band scores and desire to attend rehearsals and appearances."

Those interested may call Ellison, 626-2386, or bring their instruments and show at any Monday night rehearsal in the Franklin Community Church on Franklin Road at 8 p.m.

Ellison says an excellent program is being prepared for events during the biennial year.

OCC displays local artists

Works by two women artists are on display at the Orchard Ridge campus library, Farmington Hills, through Thursday, Jan. 29.

The 14 pieces of wall and floor sculpture are by Pam Freund of Southfield and Karen Roth of Huntington Woods. Ms. Roth's pieces are of branches, canvas coated with polyester resin and jute. Ms. Freund works with a variety of materials including plywood and found objects.

The show is open to the public at no charge.
