

4 soloists appear on Oakway program

The Oakway Symphony Orchestra will perform at 8 p.m. Sunday in the Mercy High School Auditorium, Eleven Mile and Middle Belt roads, Farmington Hills. Francesco DiBlasi will conduct the orchestra.

Verdi's "Requiem" is the entire program. Soloists are Katy Wolff, soprano; Anne Jaffe, contralto; Edward Kings, tenor; and Cornwell Carrington, bass.

The Kenneth Jewell Chorale will be supplemented by the Oakway Symphonic Choir, a group of selected singers from Birmingham Seaholm High School, Bentley Concert Choir, Northern Chorale from North Farmington High and Southfield-Lathrup Madrigal Singers.

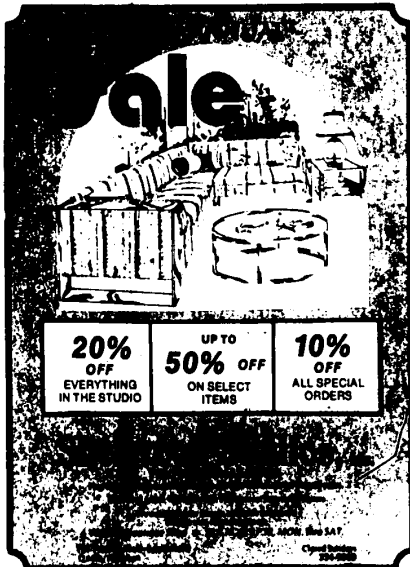

The concert, which features a total of 190 voices including the Jewell Chorale, is made available in part through a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts.

"Requiem" is a theatrical piece Verdi wrote in commemoration of Manzoni, famous librettist in Italy. It calls for eight extra trumpets.

Conductor DiBlasi said of the program, "We've been rehearsing this since Dec. 1. This is one of the big choral works of all time, ranking with Beethoven's Ninth or Kodaly's 'Te Deum.' The solo parts are more demanding than grand opera."

Tickets priced for adults and students are available at Hudson's, Royal Music in Royal Oak, Hammill Music in Livonia, Madonna College in Livonia, and the Southfield Parks and Recreation office.
