This weekly feature column is entitled, "Ecumenical Reflections." So let's see how the ecumenical movement is reflected in the passing scene here in Observerland.

The ecumenical movement has the passing scene here in Observarefine courientical movement has te do with the expression of unity, especially among Christians. The thesis is that the Church will be truer to her Lord and more effective in service to the world when she acts as one body. Most Christians would agree with this position, at least in theory.

One of the favorite hymns among us is "Onward, Christian Soldiers." In the second stanza we lustily proclaim:
Like a mighty army
Moves the Church of God;
Moves the Church of God;
We are not divided,
All one body we,
One in hope and doctrine,
One in charity.
According to this, the Church is nearly invincible be ca u se it to moves forward as one man, There are no divisions among us; our unity embraces our bellef and our conduct. That's what we sing about.
Let's see how well this accords conduct. That's what we sing about.

Let's see how well this accords with the facts. Study the Church Directory that appears on these two pages. It is a good indication of the way in which the Church or churches appear to the general public. What is the overall impression you receive from this listing? Are you struck by the obvious oneness in our doctrine? Or does it rather appear that there are at least 57 varieties of Christianity being presented? I sit clear that all churches are working harmoniously, towards the same goal? Or does it look more like the various churches are competing with each other for potential customers? New residents "shop around" from church to church looking for a permandar religious home. Aid each congregation of the same should be allowed to the same factorial to make the same factorial to the same factoriale

A retired Canadian Bishop who has won fame in the metropolitan area as a speaker was in Plymouth last week.
His purbose? To speak to the women's club of St. Kennehr's Roman Catholic Church in Plymouth Township.

In 1944 lilness forced him to resign from the Canadian service and in 1947 he joined the faculty at Assumption. It was then that he started giving speeches in earnest.

wHILE I was teaching I had time to make speeches in the evenings and on the wetcods, "he said, "Now that 'm retired I have even more time to develop to them," be said, "Now that 'm retired I have even more time to devote to them," by so hoted as a raccostour and he freely admits hat he uses humor to tillustrate his message, "My addience will remember the story and then the point I was making," he says,

His speeches are not confined to purely Catholic groups but rather run the gambit from conventions to credit union meetings to church groups,

In fact he remembers a trip
