In convention

Rabbi Seymour J. Rosenbloom, right, spiritual leader of Adat Shalom Synagogue, has just returned to Farmington after a convention of the Rabbinical Assembly of America, in Grossinger's New York. He is with Dr. Gerson D. Cohen, chancellor of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America. Rosenbloom is a graduate of the seminary's Rabbinical School and regional chairman for Michigan in the Rabbinical Assembly's Campaign Committee for the Seminary. The New York-based seminary, academic and spiritual center of Conservative Judaism, coproduces "The Eternal Light" radio and television programs.

Philosophy class set at temple

At a Friday service of the Birmingham Temple philosophy class, a program called "An Evening With the Philosophers" will be presented at 9:30 p.m. May 21.

There will be an informal discussion of the most important contemporary issues of philosophy, ethics and politics with a panel of guests, both living and dead.

Featured will be Richard Rader as Prof. Richard Rader, David Sherbin as Albert Camus, Miriam Dikler as William James, Steven Dorn as Walter Papper, Stuart Geller as Friedrich Nietzsche, and Howard Good as Bertrand Russell.

After the discussion, the philosophers will welcome questions from the audience.

Gray hair returns to natural-looking color ...gradually

Times have changed. No man has to be gray if he doesn't want to be. And the old-fashioned "dyed look" is out. Nine days when a man wants to get rid of his gray, he does it the man's way, with Gray Control. If you think the decision is to get rid of your gray is "taking the plunge," relax. Actually the opposite is true when you use Gray Control. It's a clear liquid conditioner that slowly feeds a transperox tone back into your hair. You comb in a few drops each day — it takes just a couple of seconds — and gray gradually fades away to let the color you remember return and blend. Over a period of weeks you decide how much gray you want. Keep some gray, a little on the sides or none. Day to day change is so slight and natural looking nobody notices it happening. Gray goes as quietly as it came — and you're in control every step of the way. When your hair's the way you want it, just comb in a few drops once or twice a week to keep it that way for good. Because Gray Control actually combines with the proteins in your hair it won't wash out or rub off. Shampoo, swimming in salt water or chloring — even rough towel-drying won't affect it. Yet you can go back to gray if you wish simply by doing nothing for a few weeks. You're always in control. Gray Control clear liquid and also cream.
