

Celebration

Farmington parties for nation's birthday

Janice Schriber, Miss Farmington 1975, danced through the night with her father, Tom, during the bicentennial celebration. She will be competing in the Miss Michigan contest this month.

Two Hessian soldiers keep a vigil while Farmington bicentennial celebrants enjoyed the spread at the Botsford Inn.

Walter Boese kept the evening bright by lighting the candles at everyone's table.

Marion Boese (center), chairman of the Farmington Bicentennial Ball Committee, cuts the five-tiered birthday cake provided by the Farmington Bakery. Joining her are Mrs. Bob Smith (left) and Mrs. John Anhut.

Bob Smith, bicentennial ball committee member, acted as master of ceremonies for the evening and added a little color to the festivities in his period costume.

Sue Reed, a former Miss Farmington, pleased the crowd by singing the Star Spangled Banner.

Staff photos by Harry Mauthe

PIERRE CARDIN HAS HIS OWN TYPE OF T. HE BLENDED IT FOR YOU—WITH MORE THAN JUST TASTE IN MIND.

He put in skinny ribbing for great body.

Doing it in cotton so that when it's hot, you won't be. Then he added glorious color and initialed it all.

Really, what more could a T-lover want?

In red, white, navy, black and fashion colors. One size fits all. $18. In The Woodward Shops at Hudson's Northland,

Pontiac and Oakland stores.

hudson's

Charlie and Sue Paul get a laugh out of each other's costumes. Charlie also did his part by providing the public relations for one of the Farmington areas most successful evenings.

Mr. and Mrs. John Anhut greeted guests at the Botsford Inn Carriage House for the bicentennial ball. John is the Botsford's innkeeper.

Dr. and Mrs. Mervyn Ross picked up the tempo by joining in the dance music provided by Danny Baker and his orchestra.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Wibby danced away the evening as did many of the hundreds of residents from Farmington and Farmington Hills.

