

Scali designs the French look

By CHRISTINE WALDEN

Blossoms are full and contrast in style to tailored skirts.

Too, the 32 colors add a certain chic to the collection through combination and contrast.

A black tunic is touched with a purple and grey print. In a more dramatic design, black is trimmed with bright orange or soft peach. Navy blue and shades of lighter blue and beige color another suit. Off-shades of pink, lavender, rust and others comprise some of the skirt and blouse ensembles.

Each color and every print is a Scali exclusive and made specifically for the line. "We buy the pattern and then have it made with our own colors," said Ms. Point.

SCALI NUDGED into the Paris fashion business six years ago. Her forte then was blouses—soft, feminine and enthusiastically met. With them, she built her name. Three years ago she expanded to design skirts to go with her already famous tops.

"During the first three years, we were known because of the blouses. But we wanted to have a complete line," said Ms. Point.

Now, dresses, jumpuits, pants, skirts and blouses comprise the all silk and crepe du chine collection.

Further, not only are Scali designs available in every major city in the United States, but she is collecting an increasing number of devotees.

THE DESIGNS themselves are unconstructed and flattering. One dress features a blouse waist, drop crotch and full-length skirt. A suit pairs a sloppy cardigan jacket with a bowed, Peter Pan collar blouse.

The two-piece suit looks like a dress in beige and black.
