Fix up your old car and you're dollars ahead. Right now with summer coming, is a perfect time so you can run it many more miles.

Goodyear tire testers have proven this by operating their cars an outstanding 350,000 to 400,000 hard miles. Your total repair cost probably will not be very great if you have given your car any sort of reasonable care. Balance this against a possible $700 to $1000 first year depreciation on a new car, along with the monthly payments and the repair bill will seem very reasonable in comparison. Trouble free driving is worth a great deal. So you have every reason to opt for repairs instead of replacement.
