Country art fair

The lambs that are now on posters all over town advertising The Country Art Fair were taken from the batik done by Nancy Abbott, one of the 101 artists and craftsmen who will show their work in the Farmington Community Center and on the grounds

May 21-22. Demonstrations, special exhibits and continuous entertainment all work together to bring back the spirit of Early America. Admission to the grounds is free. (Staff photo by Harry Mauthe)

Beginners canoe

A basic canoe course, designed to provide the participants with basic canoeing techniques required for safe boating will be sponsored by the Farmington Area Recreation Commission.

Three summer sessions, of four classes each, will begin June 8, July 6, and Aug. 3. Deadline for registration for the first session is May 25.

The $16 fee for adults, or $16 for children from 10 to 14 years, includes canoes, life jackets and paddles.

Each session will wind up with an all day canoeing trip.

Each Wednesday class will run from 7 to 9 p.m.

Registrations are being taken now by calling the recreation office at 474-6115.

He is an coordinator of future studies at Schoolcraft College. His topic is "Issues Jury: A Process for Designing Tomorrow Today."

Caring for shut-ins seminar continues

Chaplain Edward Einem continues his seminar on "Caring for the shut-ins" May 22 and 29 in the fellowship hall of Prince of Peace Lutheran Church, 38900 New Market, Farmington Hills.

The sessions are held at 9:30 a.m., and are open to all interested persons in the community.

The May 22 session is called "The Listening Visitor," and the one scheduled for May 29 is called "Bringing the Word of God to the Shut-In."

8 are confirmed

Eight young persons publicly confirmed their faith in Jesus Christ in the rite of confirmation worship service early this month in Prince of Peace Lutheran Church. The rite was officiated by Rev. Edward Einem. The confirmands are: Brian Bowditch, Robert Harris, Susan Burdell, David Fritsch, Dan Kavanaugh, Susan Olson, Lisa Schaif and James Tino. Also taking part in the service were the parents of the confirmands, members of the church council and the church choir.

Aud Association for Lutherans hosted the confirmands at dinner in Sweden House.
