A pleasant surprise party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jensen, the occasion being Mr. Jensen's 31st birthday. Mr. Jensen motored out of the village in the evening on some business, when upon his return at 9:30 he was surprised by 35 of his friends who arrived during his absence.

While surprises of all descriptions were in vogue, Carl Heise, who was appointed toastmaster, presented Mr. Jensen, in behalf of Mrs. Jensen and friends, with a beautiful piece of furniture in shape of a combination book case and desk, a gift which will no doubt be considered his idle piece of furniture, as it is a useful article for a business man.

One of the notable features of the evening was a surprise on the friends by the hostess, who ordered the course dinner served at 11:30 p.m., a dinner which was splendidly prepared by the hostess.
