PATHOS IN CHILDISH WISH

PATHOS IN CHILDRA WISH

Hard That Her Modest Request of Santa Claus Was Not Likely to Be Granted.

A little miss of five, who had been separated from her mother, sisters and brother since the death of her father, was permitted to spend a few days with them a short time ago.

This little girl has everything and one love bestowed an her the state of the conthidish heart could wish for ast diven who are very langer during her brid vist, but now and then her brave little heart world fail her, and she would ery at the thought of being separated nath.

One outburst came after a talk on St. Nicholas and the yuletide. "Mother, does Santa Claus bring everything we ask for?"

"Well, dear, Santa usually brings to little hoys and girls those things which are most necessary for their happiness.
Wile, what would you like to have him
bring to you this year?"

"Well, unter, all I want this year
is you."

"Well, mother, all I want this year."
Evidently the pained expression on the inother's face caused the child to fear that here wish could not be granted.

"Well, where I don't see wish recouldn't. He brings hables to some couldn't. He brings hables to some the couldn't will be bring the brings with the couldn't you remember all of the toys be left for us last year?"—Indianapolis News.

The Way of it.

"You say he got the drop on you?"
"Yes, he landed on my head in a parachute."
