Prices, Wages Rise

The consumer price index rose 0.6 per cent in June, the U.S. Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics has announced.

At 127.6, the June index was 5.5 per cent above a year ago and 3.2 per cent higher than at the end of 1968.

The acceleration in the index's advance last month stemmed largely from sharply higher prices for foods, principally beef and pork. The increase for meats was the largest since June 1965. After adjustment for seasonal influences, meat prices showed a second-quarter increase of nearly 3 per cent.

'CHARGES FOR all types of consumer services were higher in June and accounted for about one-fourth of the advance in the overall index.

Costs of mortgage interest and home maintenance and repair services continued to move up appreciably.

Higher physicians' fees contributed most to the rise for medical care services, and increases in public transportation fares pushed the cost of transportation services up.

Prices of commodities other than food climbed 0.4 per cent in June. Apparel prices rose further and prices of gasoline, cigars, and used cars all were significantly higher.

Cigarettes moved up in response to the recent increase in manufacturers' prices.

Approximately 77,000 workers will receive cost-of-living pay increases based on the June consumer price index.

THE PURCHASING power of the nation's rank-and-file workers rose in June despite a substantial increase in consumer prices.

Gross weekly earnings advanced to a record $115.06, a gain of $1.56 from May and $6.56 (6.3 per cent) from the June 1968 level. The over-the-month increase was attributable primarily to a 0.4-hour rise in the workweek, coupled with a one-cent gain in hourly earnings.

After adjustment for price changes, weekly earnings for all rank-and-file workers were 0.7 per cent above both the May 1969 and June 1968 levels.

At $100.34, spendable earnings (take-home pay) for the worker with three dependents surpassed the $100 mark for the first time in June, as gains were posted in all major industry sectors. Take-home pay increased by $1.21 from May and $4.79 (5.0 per cent) from a year earlier.
