The two vital ingredients of a slam are power and controls It is not senough to be able to win 12 or 13 tricks. They must be certain that the defense cannot defeat the contract at the very start. South was very optimistic but the justification was found in the distribution. Once North indicated quite with the position of the positio

West led the jack of spades.

Declarer expects the defense to have a heart trick. It is unlikely the suit will divide 3-3 or that the J-10 will be a doubleton.

In case the hearts do not divide, five diamonds must be won. This will only occur 16 percent of the time. On this deal, the hearts do divide and winning four diamonds is a relatively secure 88 percent chance.

Since South does not know the hearts will divide, he must play dismonds immediately. Whereas four diamond tricks are likely to be made by nearly any play: lead the ace, finess the queen or run the Jack; five tricks require the finess of the queen. When this succeeds, South has a guess. Leading the jack or the ace are equal and only intuition will help.
