

Hugh Jarvis Presents...

One of the three complete sets of

BING & GRONDAHL Christmas Plates in the world.

On display September 8 through September 15

Hugh Jarvis Gifts

852 West Ann Arbor Trail

453-0656

Also locations in SOUTHLAND CENTER & FRANKLIN PARK MALL, TOLEDO, OHIO

Hours: Daily 9:30-6 Fri. 9:30-9

Festival brings 4 days of free entertainment

Four days of free entertainment at the fall festival will be highlighted this year by a group which performs during the summer at the Boblo Pavilion.

The glittering Gay Nineties-Roaring Twenties Review is slated for two performances, Friday, Sept. 11, at 8 and 9 p.m. Clad in authentic costumes, the group will perform 22 hit songs and dances from the late '90s to the 1920s. It is a slick, fast-moving show and uses precise timing, according to manager Sidney Knight.

Every seat in the park is a good one as Amethyst, a local rock group, begins Thursday evening.

Children and adults will enjoy the

Thursday and Friday night appearances of Sawdust the Clown and his assistant, Bloopster. They may have watched them on television in "Jerry in the Circus."

Michigan Consolidated Grass will bring a bluegrass sound. Those Fall Festival favorites, the Suburban Chorus, will be featured Friday.

Other groups will be the Plymouth Community Chorus, the Livonia Civic Chorus, "Four of a Kind," a barber-shop quartet; and The Harmonica Men.

A complete guide to entertainment and the time of each performance is listed with the festival schedule in the centerfold of this special issue.

Don't forget store windows

Visitors to the fall festival are reminded, "Don't forget to take a good look at the store windows."

Merchants participate in the festival. Their advertisements make this Plymouth Fall Festival issue possible and decorations in the shops and store windows reflect festival spirit.

Fine displays of antiques furnished by local collectors are arranged in the windows for the duration of the festival.

Windows are judged and prizes awarded in several categories.

The Plymouth Merchants Association sponsors the project and Joan Gerigh of the Alphabet Gallery is chairperson this year.

The city has an exceptional variety of fine and unusual shops.

Plymouth has become a mecca for shoppers looking for the top fashion lines in men's and women's clothing; fine china, crystal, furniture, and home accessories; fine restaurants; and candle, book, pipe, wine, gift and jewelry shops.

There are two doll shops. Persons can spend a whole day browsing in Old Village's antique shops, resale shops, gallery and boutiques.

Out-of-town fall festival visitors are invited to make special note of Plymouth stores and come back again, when it's all over. They will appreciate the small-town courtesy and attention they receive from the merchants.

THE IRON GATE

on 840 Penniman Street near Main

Come by and see one of Plymouth's newly renovated buildings. You will see the familiar Trading Post, a new and interesting place called the Static Shop, and...

Garay B. Interiors

Thru the Iron Gate and up the stairs