Oakland's friend is Ontario town

The Oakland County Bicentennial Commission is participating in a "Hands Across the Border" program with Bayfield, Ontario, a community northwest of Sarnia. Oakland County will present a friendship scroll to Reeve (Mayor) E.W. Oddison of the Corporation of the Village of Bayfield.

land residents spend their summer holidays in Bayfield making it a logical choice for the project.

The scroll is a memento from the residents of Oakland County, its Bicentennial Commission, County Commission Chairman Alexander C. Perinoff of Southfield and County Executive Daniel T. Murphy.

It is for the citizens of Bayfield in remembrance of their 100th birthday celebration and America's bicentennial.

The scroll was signed by Robert W. Page, chairman of the Oakland bicentennial commission, who said: "We feel a definite kinship with our Canadian friends and we want to show our appreciation of their celebration. We hope for even more exchanges in the future."

Page will lead a contingency to Bayfield Sept. 20, for the official presentation.

The Village of Bayfield was brought to the attention of the bicentennial commission by one of its members, Mrs. Lou Lance of Royal Oak. ## Future career is panel topic

It never hurts to talk to an expert before you decide on a future career.

That's why the University of Michigan Dearborn's placement office will be offering career information seminars beginning this month.

Each week a panel of experts from one career field will present a discussion about that field followed by a question and answer period. Representatives from Michigan's professional schools will also be invited to discuss admissions procedures and career opportunities.

The seminars will meet each Wednesday at 11:30 a.m. in Middle 4, located next to the cafeteria.

The first seminar, Sept. 22, will center on law. Representatives from University of Michigan, Wayne State University, University of Detroit and Cooley Law Schools will be available to talk to prospective applicants.

Anyone interested in a possible future in marketing can attend the Sept. 29 seminar. Representatives from local marketing firms, including Campbell-Ewald, will discuss marketing as a career.

All sessions are open to the public.
